Martial Law To Be Lifted In Viet Nam

Mrs. Nhu Cries Over Possible End To U.S. Aid

COMBINED AP & UPI

SAIGON, South Viet Nam — The government said today it would lift martial law on Monday despite reports of the arrest of more suspected opposition elements and student disorders reported in cities in central Viet Nam.

The government press agency said martial law imposed on the country on Aug. 20 would be lifted Monday and that government duties taken over temporarily by the army will be performed by civilians after that.

SAIGON UNEASY

Although martial law will be lifted, the national state of emergency proclaimed in 1961, remains in force. Saigon itself was uneasy with troops still guarding schools against possible anti-government outbursts.

The Viet Nam agency said President Ngo Dinh Diem, in a separate decree, announced that elections for the national assembly will be held Sept. 27.

In Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu turned from smiles to tears at a news conference today while talking about reports that the United States might cut off aid to South Viet Nam.

'NO RIGHT'

"You have no right to drop it," she said looking at American reporters. "You will lose the confidence of the world."

She said she believed South Viet Nam, troubled by a Communist guerrilla war and a Buddhist religious crisis, would welcome a U.N. inquiry into the latter. But she said she doubted the U.N. membership would approve of one.

Viet Nam elections originally were set for Aug. 31 but were postponed indefinitely when the government cracked down on Buddhists and university students protesting against Viet Nam's authoritarian government.

Informed sources said government secret police carried out a series of pre-dawn raids this morning and arrested persons including civil servants and army officers thought to be opposed to the Diem regime.

There was no report of the number arrested, but today's raids were a continuation of other similar cases during the last two days.

Shipping Clerk's Wife Gives Birth To Quints

Doctor Says All Five Babies 'Doing Well'

ABERDEEN, S.D. (UPI)—The wife of a $76-a-week grocery shipping clerk, already the mother of five children, gave birth today to quintuplets—four girls and a boy who were pronounced "fine babies."

The premature children of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fischer, if they live, will be the first quintuplets ever born in the United States to survive.

Their doctor, general practitioner James Berbos, said the babies' chances are good.

"The greatest danger involved is prematurity itself," he said. "There is a danger of membrane disease. But these are fine babies. As far as I know they're going to be all right."

The 38-year-old father, who confessed he was "shocked to the gills," took a look at his new children in the nursery of St. Luke's Hospital and then hurried to his farm outside of town to tell the other children and to milk the cows.

FIVE AND FIVE

One of the other Fischer children, 5-year-old Jilie, said "There are five of us kids and there are five of the new kids and that means one for each of us."

Danny, 7, shouted, "I wanted a brother and I got one!"

Mrs. Fischer, a pleasant-faced, auburn-haired housewife, was moved from the maternity ward to a private room at St. Luke's. Her husband, exhausted himself, said "She's really happy about it."

Later in the day the mother planned to go by wheel chair to the nursery to see her babies in their isolettes—individual incubators.

TO BE BAPTIZED

The Most Rev. Lambert Hoch, bishop of the Sioux Falls, S.D., Roman Catholic Diocese, arranged to fly here to baptize the quints. The bishop also planned to administer the sacrament of confirmation to the babies, the hospital announced.

The Fischers hadn't had time to decide on names.

"Just A-B-C-D-E," the father said.

Until 10 o'clock last night Mrs. Fischer had been expecting twins. Her doctor and husband, forewarned by X-rays, knew there would be five babies. But they didn't want to frighten her.

It was a natural birth, without anesthetics and with only a whiff or two of oxygen to help the mother through. She saw her babies moments after they were born.

The first quint was a girl, arriving at 1:58 a.m. Then there was a second girl at 2:03, a third at 2:14, the boy at 2:39, and the fourth girl at 3:01.

In his 10-room white stucco home two miles outside of town, Fischer tried to figure how to support his doubled brood on his salary.

"It won't be easy," he said.

Chilean Party Leader Finds Visit To Sausalito High Point Of Tour

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Jose DeGregorio strode through tiny Vina del Mar Plaza in Sausalito yesterday in weather similar to summer time in his native Chile and said "I like it."

The park is named for Sausalito's sister city, Vina del Mar, about two hours' drive from Santiago where DeGregorio has his office as secretary-general of the Christian Democratic Party.

Later, on his way to see the Civic Center in San Rafael with City Mgr. Charles A. Brown, he expressed delight to see Chilean flags waving from windows of the Village Fair on Bridgeway.

"What are they for?" he asked. Brown said the shops were preparing for celebration of Chilean independence day Wednesday when Sausalito firemen are to be honored and there will be a parade of fire equipment on Bridgeway.

Early in the afternoon DeGregorio was escorted by former Mayor Robert M. Gunn and former Councilman Shirley Morgan into Sausalito industries. Included in the tour was a visit to E. D. Bullard Co., safety appliances; the yacht harbors and a view of the Army Corps of Engineers San Francisco Bay model. "Sausalito has been one of the biggest satisfactions of my visit so far in the U.S.," DeGregorio said.

In the United States on a 45-day tour under the foreign leader program of the State Department, DeGregorio has visited Washington where he saw "The March," New York, Little Rock, Los Angeles and is to remain in San Francisco until Tuesday. From there he goes to Chicago, where he plans to celebrate Chilean Independence Day with friends; Cedar Rapids to see farming; South Bend, Ind., to see auto assembly; Niagara Falls; Pittsburgh; Puerto Rico and Miami.

Asked if he isn't young to be holding the fourth most important job in his party, he replied, "In Chile there are a lot of political leaders younger than I." He is 33, married, the father of three.

DeGregorio said there are about nine major parties in

Constant Vigil Kept On Engle —Politicians Follow Reports

COMBINED AP & UPI

WASHINGTON—A constant vigil was maintained today at the bedside of critically ill Sen. Clair Engle (D-Calif.) and his brother Fred was reported on his way to Washington from Sacramento.

Engle, who will be 52 on Sept. 21, was suffering from a malignant brain tumor and was reported to be slowly improving, but his chances of a full recovery remained uncertain.

Physicians said it was impossible to determine definitely the course of his illness. Their statement, issued through his office, broke a recently imposed official silence on his condition.

Persons close to the senator had described him as in "very bad shape," but the doctors said his condition was not critical.

In Sacramento, California political leaders kept a sharp eye on Washington for further reports on Engle's condition.

Both Democrats and Republicans who might seek the job if Engle can't campaign for a second term next year carefully refrained from any comment.

The fact that Engle's Washington office and his doctors declined comment on reports that he's dying from a brain tumor served, however, to fan political speculation.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown was off on a pack trip in the Trinity Alps of northern California. His staff said it had no direct

Bodega Bay A-Plant Defended

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Rep. Craig Hosmer (R-Calif), a member of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy, has defended plans to construct a nuclear power plant at Bodega Head in Sonoma County.

The Long Beach congressman also announced yesterday that an atomic energy commission hearing on the plant, originally scheduled for this summer, has been postponed until at least December because of opposition to the facility.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Co., which will operate the plant if it wins AEC approval, has already begun some phases of construction on the site.

Hosmer, who has been touring Bay Area atomic facilities during the past week, told a press conference that the plant will not add any radiation to food or to nearby waters or to the air. Opponents of the facility have expressed fear that radioactive elements will be emitted from the plant and affect local dairy products.

The congressman also reject-

Tank From One Of Crashed A.F. Jets Is Found

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A wing tank from one of two Air Force planes which collided over the Pacific was found today 70 miles at sea but there was no trace of the three pilots.

The wing tank was from the F-102 jet interceptor piloted by Capt. George Perrin, 24, of Denver.

It was spotted by a Coast Guard plane, then picked up and identified by a Coast Guard cutter 70 miles northwest of Point Reyes.

The Coast Guard said today that radar screen studies showed definitely there was a collision last night over the Pacific of Perrin's interceptor with a T-33 jet trainer carrying Capt. Richard R. Broehm, 31, Fond du Lac, Wis., and Capt. Bernard F. Daugherty, 35, of Jacksonville, N.C.

Billowing Smoke

The billowing smoke in the San Anselmo area this morning was caused by controlled burning on the Sunny Hills grounds to prepare a parking lot for the coming Grape festival, San Anselmo firemen reported.

Atom Blast Rocks Vegas

NEVADA TEST SITE, Nev. (UPI)—Scientists today sought to determine how strongly a mighty underground nuclear blast here yesterday registered as an earthquake in California seismological laboratories.

The explosion, possibly equal to one million tons of TNT, was one of two detonated by the Atomic Energy Commission. It rocked the gambling center of Las Vegas, about 65 miles from here.

Some structures in downtown Las Vegas vibrated for 15 minutes from the force of the explosion, but no damage or injuries were reported.

Seismographs at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena — about 290 miles away—and at the University of California at Berkeley—about 600 miles from here—recorded a fairly strong tremblor in southern Nevada at 10 a.m.

Boat In Distress Off Point Reyes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A fishing boat, the Service, sent out a distress call shortly after 11 a.m. today and reported taking on water while 50 miles southwest of Point Reyes.

The Coast Guard dispatched a plane with a pump and also sent a cutter.

Mill Valley Park Head Out Of Job

Joe Penders, Mill Valley park superintendent for the past 12 years, said today he was given verbal notice yesterday by the city manager that he is to be replaced as superintendent.

"I'm completely mystified," said the 57-year-old employee, "no reason was given." He said he was told he will get formal notice Monday morning.

City Mgr. A. E. Almcrants had no comment today but said he will have information to release Monday.

"I have received full support from part of the parks and recreation commissioners," Penders said, "and also from members of the men's and women's golf clubs who said, if this goes through, they will be at Monday night's city council meeting to protest it."

In addition to himself, Penders said, Almcrants has told him that he plans to retire two of Penders' crew members, Ted Hansen, park groundsman for 13 years, and Manuel Silva, greenskeeper, who has served 26 years with the park department.

Both men are past 65 and face compulsory retirement at 70 but neither have indicated they want to retire yet, Penders reported. He said they will be allowed to work until replacements are found, according to Almcrants.

Ehrlichs Miss Their Bus —And $20,000 In Jewelry

Mr. and Mrs. Philip S. Ehrlich Jr. of Sausalito started their European vacation by missing their bus—and missing $15,000 to $20,000 of Mrs. Ehrlich's jewelry.

The Ehrlichs are scheduled to leave today on a flight to London, but New York police still are searching for a cosmetic case with the jewelry, which a taxi driver may have taken.

The Ehrlichs missed the bus which was to have taken them to Idlewild Airport last night where they were to stay at the International Hotel awaiting their flight. They took a taxi, placing their luggage in the trunk. When they arrived at the airport hotel, the cosmetic case was missing. Police said the cab driver may have driven off with the bag still in the trunk compartment.

Ehrlich, an attorney in San Francisco, is a former Sausalito mayor and city councilman.

$1,200 Ring Stolen

Theft of a $1,200 saphire, diamond and platinum wedding ring from a jewelry box in a bedroom was reported yesterday to sheriff's deputies by Mrs. Marie Theresa David of 22 Cypress Avenue, Kentfield.

Golden Gate Bridge Earns $2,746,157

Socialite Dies In New York

Mrs. Stur

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Gail Whitney Stur, former debutante and daughter of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney died at New York Memorial Hospital yesterday.

She was 24 years old.

Mrs. Stur's death was attributed to cancer and allied diseases.

She entered the hospital for treatment on Aug. 28.

Royalty Graces Opera Opening

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The kings and queens of San Francisco society took a back seat to real royalty at the glittering opening of the 41st San Francisco Opera season last night.

Then they sat back to hear "Aida," with soprano Leontyne Price in the title role.

Sailor Given Up For Lost

PORT JEFFERSON, N.Y. (UPI)—The Coast Guard has abandoned its search for Torpedoman James Lee Vice, 20, the only man lost when a liberty launch capsized yesterday and dumped 21 men into Long Island Sound.

Vice

The sailors had embarked from the Port Jefferson jetty on the 26-foot-launch early yeterday, returning from a day's liberty to their ship, the destroyer Hazelwood, which was anchored 1,300 yards off shore.

When the craft was only about 300 yards from the ship three large waves turned it over. Most of the men clung to the fiberglass launch and were washed ashore by winds and tides. Some swam to the Hazelwood. Others were picked up by other launches.

Vice, of San Pedro, Calif., disappeared at the scene of the capsizing. He was given up for lost at 4 p.m. yesterday.

No Indictment In Rights Death

GADSDEN, Ala. (UPI)—An Alabama county grand jury yesterday failed to indict a rural storekeeper on charges of ambushing a Baltimore postman on a civil rights hike last April.

The Etowah County Grand Jury said it took no action against Floyd Simpson in the slaying of William L. Moore, whose body was found beside a roadside park on a lonely stretch of highway 13 miles from here.

Simpson, an ex-Marine whose family has lived in this area since the Civil War, had been free under $5,000 bond pending action on the charges.

He was arrested and charged by police following a ballistics report on his .22-caliber rifle and the fatal bullets. The report never was released.

Moore, 35, on vacation from his postal job in Baltimore, was making a "freedom walk" to Mississippi to deliver a letter to Gov. Ross Barnett. The letter asked Barnett to assure Negroes their civil rights.

$100,000 Gem Theft

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—A pair of fast-working bandits, wearing white gloves, stocking masks and what appeared to be paratroopers' suits, smashed a display window with a plank, scooped up more than $100,000 in jewels and escaped by car and boat.

Except that the take was smaller, last night's robbery was a near-duplication of a February 1962 robbery of the chain's store in nearby Pompano Beach. Three men charged with that one, which netted one million dollars, are in jail.

Witnesses said the bandits were in and out of the store in less than a minute. A couple pursued the getaway car, but the robbers shot their radiator and they turned back.

Kennedy Surgery

BOSTON (UPI)—Former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, the president's father, will enter New England Baptist Hospital today for what doctors described as a minor operation to remove a "skin lesion."

The operation was expected to last about two hours.

The elderly Kennedy, 75, has been in poor health since a stroke in December 1961. He underwent similar surgery in July at Cape Cod Hospital in Hyannis when a growth was removed from his forearm.

Dr. Samuel F. Marshall of Newton, who performed the previous operation, will operate today. Family sources said Kennedy will be brought here from his summer home at Hyannis Port and then will return there later in the day.

Credit Card Jail

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The first person convicted in California for fraudulently using a telephone credit card yesterday got a one to five year prison sentence.

Mrs. Sandra S. Stewart, 24, was sentenced to the Corona State Prison for Women. She had pleaded guilty to using a Taft resident's telephone credit card number in placing nearly $1,000 worth of long distance calls to friends and relatives over several months.

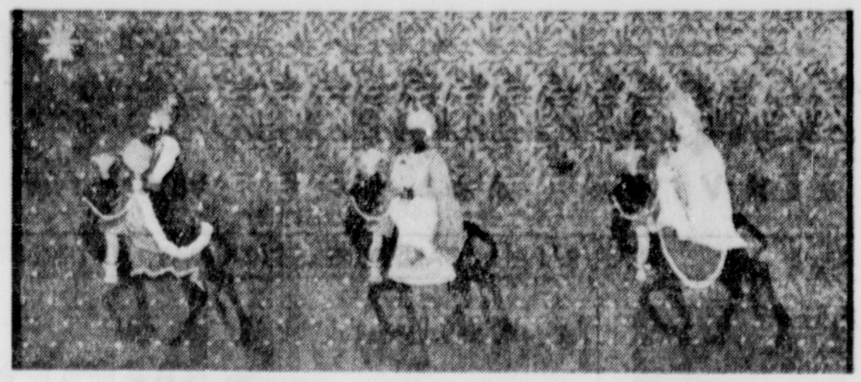
The Pacific Telephone Co. said an analysis of toll tickets had indicated the area from which many of the calls were being placed. They said the caller was traced after an operator who had been alerted recognized the credit number and held the line open.

Against Water Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. John F. Baldwin (R-Calif.) has urged California Gov. Edmund G. Brown to reject the proposed five-state Pacific southwest water plan.

Baldwin, in a letter to Brown, said the 4.1-billion-dollar plan proposed by Interior Secretary Stewart Udall had "highly hazardous" features from California's viewpoint.

He said the plan was so "dangerous" for Northern California that it should be actively opposed by the state.



THE ARTIST: JACQUELINE KENNEDY

This is one of the watercolor sketches by Jacqueline Kennedy being produced for Christmas cards by Hallmark Cards of Kansas City. Proceeds will go to the National Cultural Center proposed for Washington, D.C. This sketch, titled "Journey of the Magi," shows three kings following the star. The kings are on black camels against a red tapestry-like background. Gold star and gold dots cover the background. The first king (left) wears a purple robe over a blue garment; the second has a green robe and yellow garment, and the third wears a pink robe. (AP Wirephoto)

Army Photo Order

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army ordered yesterday immediate action by its commands around the world to make sure military policemen, Army, airmen and others do not hinder civilian news photographers unless classified information is involved.

The message followed adverse publicity growing out of an incident involving a free-lance photographer, Peter Holt of Menlo Park, Calif. Holt said he destroyed film after the pilot of an Army helicopter, damaged in a rescue operation, asked him to do so and told him no pictures were allowed.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Princess Christina of Sweden flew to the United States today to study at Radcliffe College in Cambridge, Mass.

The 20-year-old granddaughter of King Gustaf vi Adolf, is the first member of Swedish royalty to attend college in the United States.

PG&E Promotion

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Robert H. Gerdes, president of Pacific Gas and Electric Co., was named to the presidency of both Pacific Gas Transmission Co. and Alberta Natural Gas at board meetings here.

Gerdes succeeds Norman R. Sutherland, former president of PG&E, who died Sept. 1.

Health Aides Seeking Dog

Marin County Health Department officials are seeking an all-black mongrel dog, about the size of a 10-month-old German shepherd, which bit a 35-year-old San Rafael woman while she was riding a bicycle past the county farm on Lucas Valley Road on Sept. 4 at 3 p.m.

Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, health officer, said she would like to find out if the dog is alive and, if so, if it is rabied.

The unlicensed dog, with long hair and a long tail, was picked up by two men in a new green truck and thrown over the side of the road. The men had come to the aid of the woman who was bitten.

Four New Disaster Stations For Marin

Equipment for four new disaster and civil defense first aid stations was brought into Marin County today—the first to be received for this purpose in the county since 1952.

The equipment, consisting of litter cots, leg splints, first aid team kits, burn dressings, paper blankets and other supplies, was delivered to the San Rafael High School, Fairfax Community Center, Lagunitas High School in San Geronimo and the Stinson Beach Community Hall.

It was trucked in from California Disaster Office storage facilities at the Napa State Hospital by Pacific Motor Trucking Co. in cooperation with the North Bay chapter of the National Defense Transportation Assn.

Mrs. Jean Smith, deputy director of the Marin County Disaster and Civil Defense Office, said each location had been inspected and approved by a representative of the State of California Disaster Office, and permission was received from the Marin County Board of Supervisors to have the material delivered.

All first aid stations are under the jurisdiction of the County of Marin, she said.

They bring to a total of 11 the disaster and civil defense first aid stations that are now established in Marin. Other stations are located at the San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo; Larkspur City Hall; Sonoma-Marin Dairymen's Cooperative Assn., Point Reyes Station; Novato General Hospital; St. Vincent's School for Boys, San Rafael; Mill Valley Post Office and Richardson Bay School Annex in Sausalito.

Mrs. Smith said applications for other first aid stations will be considered, subject to the necessary approval. Equipment is released to the county by the State of California without charge. Each unit contains sufficient materials for the emergency treatment of approximately 500 casualties.

Judge Rules Against Murderer

Should a rape - murderer be spared from the gas chamber because his actions were "uncontrollable?"

Not in the case of San Quentin convict Lawrence Akin Jackson, 35, who raped and killed Doris Keyes, 52, in Riverside one year ago, a Marin judge decided yesterday.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson, sitting in Marin Superior Court, denied a writ of habeas corpus for Jackson and vacated a previous order he had made staying the execution. This means that a new date will have to be set for Jackson's execution.

In his eight-page decision, Judge Wilson said in part:

"Even assuming that petitioner (Jackson), as a mentally abnormal sex offender, is totally unable to refrain from sexual misconduct, it does not necessarily follow that he is totally unable to refrain from taking a human life.

"Thus, it is not unreasonable to argue that even the petitioner and persons afflicted as he is would be deterred by the threat of the death penalty from killing the victim, and it is of course the killing in this case that has exposed petitioner to this penalty."

Jackson's attorneys, Allen Brotsky of San Francisco and Henry Elson of Berkeley, argued that "to put to death a human being for uncontrollable actions on his part constitutes cruel and unusual punishment."

Judge Wilson pointed out that "community conscience" must be used to decide whether or not this punishment is "cruel and unusual."

"It cannot be said that the sentence in this case is based solely or even predominantly on society's desire for revenge," the judge declared.

"Unless the court can affirmatively say that a particular sentence would arouse the unanimous, or at least overwhelming, disapproval of the community, it cannot say that such a sentence is cruel and unusual. A death sentence for rape-murder, even though the perpetrator be regarded as a mentally abnormal sex offender, does not meet this test."

More than 20 applications for each teacher vacancy were received by the Tamalpais Union High School District for 1963-64, a personnel report filed with Supt. Chester G. Carlisle showed this week.

The district processed 634 applications for 31 openings. In addition, secretary Ann D'Alvy reported, there were 225 inquiries about teaching positions.

The ratio of applications to openings this year was the highest since 1959 when the reports were first compiled. In 1962, with 40 vacancies, there were 664 applications; in 1961 the ratio was 33 to 585; in 1960 it was 28 to 435; in 1959, with 31 vacancies, there were 427 applications.

ed arguments that the plant will be unsafe because of its proximity to the San Andreas earthquake fault. He said the facility would be quake proof.

Several conservation leaders have opposed the atomic plant on the grounds that the facility and its power lines will mar the beauty of the area. Hosmer argued that Bodega Head was a "barren, brown, windswept piece of property without any charm, and will be improved if a power plant is built there."

He added that he felt nuclear progress was necessary to meet the growing demand for more electrical power in California and noted, "I do not rule out the possibility that there might be Communist opposition to nuclear progress in the United States.

"Some of the people who oppose Bodega Head," he continued, "are also active in ultra-liberal fronts that follow the line of the Daily People's World."

Meeting Monday On Fire Zones

A meeting will be held at 9:30 a.m., Monday at the Civic Center to discuss establishing new fire zones for parts of the unincorporated area of Marin County.

The meeting was called by Asst. County Administrator John F. Barrows and the county building inspection department to see whether the present fire code restrictions should be made tougher in some places.

Under the state uniform building code, the type of construction and materials are determined by the fire zone classification. All of the unincorporated area of the county is now in the least restrictive classification, but proposals have been made to change some areas to the most restrictive zone.

Jolted By 2 Temblors

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two sharp, rolling earthquakes jolted Southern California last night during a 25-minute period, but no injuries or damage were reported.

Quarry Site Again Denied By Planners

For the third time, Corte Madera planners last night denied builders permission to construct apartments on the old quarry site off Meadowsweet Drive west of Highway 101.

It was the third change of plan by designers in hopes of gaining permission to construct apartments on the 24-acre site. The apartments have been opposed by Corte Madera residents.

Last night's denial came on plans for 335 units in four stories, down from the previously proposed 384.

In other action, planning commissioners agreed to meet with the Corte Madera board of design in an effort to come to agreement with representatives of Campbell-Bishop Chevrolet on their design for a proposed building at Paradise Drive and the Corte Madera overpass east of Highway 101.

Planners last night looked askance at the company's plans for signs and questioned portions of the exterior design, lighting, fencing and proposed planters.

Commissioners also approved designs for reconstruction of the market building at Tamalpais Drive and Eastman Avenue, destroyed by fire on Aug. 31. Construction is expected to begin Monday.

Also approved were plans for an office building to be constructed at Conow and Casa Buena streets.

GOP Asks Kent To 'Repudiate' Demo Resolutions

The Marin Republican Council has called on Roger Kent, Northern California State Democratic Chairman, to "repudiate" resolutions passed recently by the Young Democrats.

The Young Democrats, according to the Marin Republican Council, adopted an "extreme left wing platform . . . critical of the President's program and contrary to the professed beliefs of the Democratic party and Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

The council termed the Young Democrats an "officially recognized and sanctioned organ of the Democratic Party." In a resolution adopted at its Thursday meeting.

The platform of the Young Democrats "is totally repugnant to the sentiments of the vast majority of the American people," the Marin Republican Council declared.

He went into politics at 16 when in "short pants." He said his party "tends to the left" but not in coordination with Marxism.

At Marin City, DeGregorio questioned if Negroes could buy houses elsewhere in Marin and said there are no Negroes in Chile but about 15,000 Indians in the South which are a minority group. He said he was impressed by the Washington march.

DeGregorio said he found the elephants in the Sausalito Plaza "beautiful" but added "the donkey is missing."

Tomorrow, said Seiglie, "we will go and see Muir Woods."

San Rafael Man Beaten By Youths

A 44-year-old San Rafael man was beaten up by two youths early today and retaliated by trying to run one of them down in his car.

Joseph Edward Helbert of 1563 Lincoln Avenue told San Rafael police that he passed a slow moving car on Lincoln Avenue after turning off from the southbound lane of Highway 101.

The car, driven by two youths estimated to be between 18 and 21 years old, then bumped into the rear of Helbert's car.

Helbert said he got out of his car to look at the damage and was grabbed by the neck from behind by one youth and thrown to the ground. The other youth began to kick him in the face, Helbert said.

The youths took Helbert's wallet, checked it and gave it back to him when they discovered it contained no money, Helbert said.

The youths drove off and Helbert followed them. Spotting him behind them, Helbert said they stopped their car and got out for the second time. He said he tried to run one of the youths down but he jumped out of the path of the car.

Helbert, who suffered bruises and cuts, jotted down the license number of the car. Police was continuing investigations today.

Is It Possible To Fringe End That Has Been Cut On Bias

By EUNICE FARMER

'In a recent column, you told us that it wasn't possible to fringe a straight piece of fabric that has been cut at an angle on the ends. Isn't it possible to fringe the ends of a bias tie?"—Mrs. C.E.S.

Dear Mrs. C.E.S.:

Yes, it is possible to fringe the ends of a tie or scarf that has been cut on the bias, provided you cut the ends on the exact straight grain of the fabric. This will still leave an angle on the ends of the tie, however, since the cut edge will either be the lengthwise or crosswise grain you should have no difficulty fringing it. You are very astute for having noticed this, many thanks.

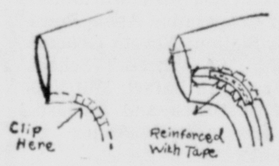
Mrs. Claude Brooms of Monroe, N.C., is this week's winner of a Tailor Trix pressing board for the following suggestion.

"In working with cotton knits, I have found that the use of single fold cotton bias tape used on hems of sleeves, overblouses and skirt hems etc., is really ideal. The bias tape allows the knit hems to give and yet controls the shape after many machine washings. This tape comes in many colors and can be machine stitched to your garment and then hemmed by hand."

"When making raglan sleeves without a gusset, how can I prevent the underarm seam from ripping? I have clipped the seams according to pattern instructions, but the clipping seems to be causing the ripping."—Mrs. W. E. S.

Dear Mrs. W. E. S.:

The correct way to finish the curved underarm seam



where there is no gusset is as follows:

1. Stitch the underarm area of about four inches twice for reinforcement.

2. Clip the underarm curve about every half inch, the clips must be made to within a thread or two of the stitching line.

3. Place this seam on the edge of a pressing board and press the seam open. The clipping, if properly done, will allow the seam to lie flat. Baste a small piece of hem tape over the clipped seam. Last, turn the garment to the right side and machine stitch each side of the seam line, as close as possible to the seam. This area is directly at the underarm and will not show unless the arms are raised very high, and will almost prevent any tearing and still give you the benefit of the added ease achieved by clipping your seam.

"I am making a wool A-line skirt and wonder if you advise lining the back to keep it from stretching."—Kathy K.

Dear Kathy:

I would line the skirt because of the A-line, and not because of stretching. You should use taffeta, firm interfacing, or any fabric with a little body so the skirt will have the proper hang. Baste this lining to your skirt fabric and treat the two layers as if they were one.

Rebecca (11 years old) says: Do not use cable cord when making a rope belt because it will cause twisting.

Your Sewing Glossary: Two-faced fabrics: Two outer fabrics are bonded together (usually by invisible stitches). This type of fabric is found in reversible garments. Some fabrics are two-faced by having the outer fabric and the lining bonded together (these cannot be separated).

"WE WERE the first library in the county to use the plastic book covers and retain the book jackets . . . we hope to start a record collection here, too—the one in Mill Valley is very popular. . . ." Thus Helen Wilson, Larkspur's energetic librarian for over 30 years and former city clerk, sees that her city's library keeps pace with Larkspur folks' growing needs. (Independent-Journal photo)

Always In Selected Company

One of a series of articles on Marin's working women.

By BARBARA HOSMER

You might say that Helen Wilson is noted chiefly for the company she keeps—all carefully selected over a 30-year period. A far cry from the mousy stereotype, the Larkspur librarian is quick to smile and almost as quick to fine you 50 cents for every page of a book you dog-ear.

She cheerfully whisks a volume from its shelf — "We're proud of our clean books," she says as worn but unsmudged pages whir before your eyes —and then turns to glance down the shelves of the oblong room with easy familiarity.

"I HAND PICK every book myself." Thus to her every dog-eared page is an affront to a personal friend.

Selecting the 17,905 books ("last year was my year to weed: I weeded 424") is no matter of whim for the woman who has been at it since the deep depression year 1932 and a job looked inviting.

She makes an exhaustive study of all the reliable book reviews, but the main factor in her selection is always the public.

"DO WE NEED this? Would my readers read this? she asks herself. She resists impulse to buy what she is interested in but she can't think of anyone else who would be. So it's really the borrowers—"53 and 7/10 per cent of Larkspur including babes in arms are cardholders"—who are considered first.

There is no rental collection. "There's too much bookkeeping for us. We had one, the most we ever made on a book was 55 cents . . . Besides, I don't think it's fair—people have already paid for the books."

When she took over the library there were 3,472 books . . . "Mostly old novels. I discarded three or four hundred of the oldest—gave them to the Salvation Army, to make room for new," she said.

HELEN WILSON took over the library in 1932. The Larkspur Women's Club started it in 1913 and it was run by a volunteer committee headed by Miss Belle C. Brown until the city took it over 10 years later.

THE BOOKS were gifts from people's attics and basements —practically no non-fiction, Mrs. Wilson recalls. It was only when the library was moved from its cramped former city council committee room upstairs in the City Hall to its present quarters when the fire department moved out that its real growth began, she said.

"WE BOUGHT mostly non-fiction books and featured children's books, as the library was really started for them," she said. "Then it got so crowded we were given the former city council chamber for the children's section.

"From summer through Christmas we'd have story hours. The children used to sit on the floor—about 50 of them —and I'd tell the stories, passing pictures around after." That went on for about six years.

"CHILDREN DON'T come to story hours anymore," Mrs. Wilson says. "Libraries try them and nobody comes."

She finds that the taste of Larkspur readers has changed tremendously over the years. Fiction borrowers used to outnumber the nonfiction borrowers 20 to 1.

"Now we issue more nonfiction. People love travel, biography and books about the new countries."

"I've split the biography into personal narratives and definitive biography, and high schoolers love the personal narratives," she says.

MRS. WILSON pointed out that the building of high schools near Larkspur had raised the level of borrowers taste, too.

"We are especially proud here of the fine arts collection, material on North American Indians, an excellent collection of Mines and Minerals of California and our reference books."

JUST TO THE left of the check-out desk is the very popular "tea cart"—a shelf of current interest books.

"The boys just love to lounge in those and read Popular Mechanics," she notes with pleasure. A semi-enclosed section up front has suitable chairs for tiny readers. Mrs. Lois Rand is children's librarian.

Another staffer, Mrs. Alberta Potter is well known to the students. Her main duty is to assist students with research.

"IT'S ONE of the services we feature," Mrs. Wilson says.

The library also has a page who helps with shelving and other jobs.

Mrs. Wilson is especially proud of the reciprocal agreement that she and County Librarian Virginia Keating were able to put into effect, so that borrowers who live in Ross, Corte Madera and Kentfield fringe areas to Larkspur can use the Larkspur city library without paying a special fee, and in return Larkspur borrowers can have the privileges of using anything in the county library.

Mrs. Wilson, who lives in the house "in the woods up the canyon" that she bought in 1924, has seen many changes in Larkspur since the days when it was mostly summer homes. Now the area is subdivided and called Madrone Highlands.

"LIFE GOES in phases I believe," she says, "and that secluded phase is over."

In the phase ahead she sees further growth of the Larkspur area and need for a library building of its own.

"THE POLICE could use this space," she comments with a twinkle in her eyes. "If a building fund were set up, a Friends of the Library organization would go with it. Within five years we would have a library building . . . ."

Thus Helen Wilson keeps busy building the once modest city library to meet Larkspur people's needs.

"I USED to work weekends and holidays too, but I don't anymore," says she. After 30 years she finds the library in good enough order to manage a five day week.

THE FUN-LOVING SEA HORSE

In the land of Lucas Valley there once lived a very playful sea horse. He loved to climb the enormous oak trees, skip along the quiet stream, or gaily bounce over the rolling hills. But one thing was missing. The sea horse had no place to swim. "Sea horses need a pool to really have fun," he said. When Mr. Eichler heard about this he made a decision. "Lucas Valley will have a complete recreation center," he said. "There will be a community center, children's play areas, adequate parking, and, most important, a huge Olympic-size swimming pool." So the work began. And on the day everything was finished, Mr. Eichler went to see it. There, right in the center of the pool, sat a very happy and contented sea horse. "Mr. Eichler," he smiled, "may I give you a ride?"

Marin Wants To Be Rural, Still We Must Circulate

Marin transportation somewhat resembles the weather, in that everybody talks about it but nobody does much about it.

The governor's impending appointments to a Bay Area Transportation Study Commission suggest a possibility that something may be done about transportation, even in Marin County—naturally after more talk, which considering the complexity of the problem is unavoidable.

In a letter to the Independent-Journal it is proposed by Mrs. Margaret Azevedo that we "sound out public opinion." This is one of those wonderful-sounding things a newspaper is supposed to do with the greatest of ease, but often with deplorable results.

It is no trick to interview a few public officials, leading citizens, or even surprised passers-by caught in personal transit past our front door. But does that sound out public opinion? One never really knows.

Anyway, we feel that Mrs. Azevedo puts things squarely when she says that Marin citizens should be aware that they face hard choices between "maintaining mobility and maintaining our rural environment." As a Tiburon resident, Mrs. Azevedo is especially aware of the thorny problem of that much-argued second spanning of San Francisco Bay between San Francisco and Marin shores.

It's the fact that we in Marin want to have the best of all possible worlds. We still start a couple of yards ahead, in spite of our share of the population explosion plus a little more. But when it comes to keeping on the move, and at the same time maintaining a truly rural atmosphere, we need all the help our planners can give. (Mrs. Azevedo has served her time with planning but seems a glutton for more.)

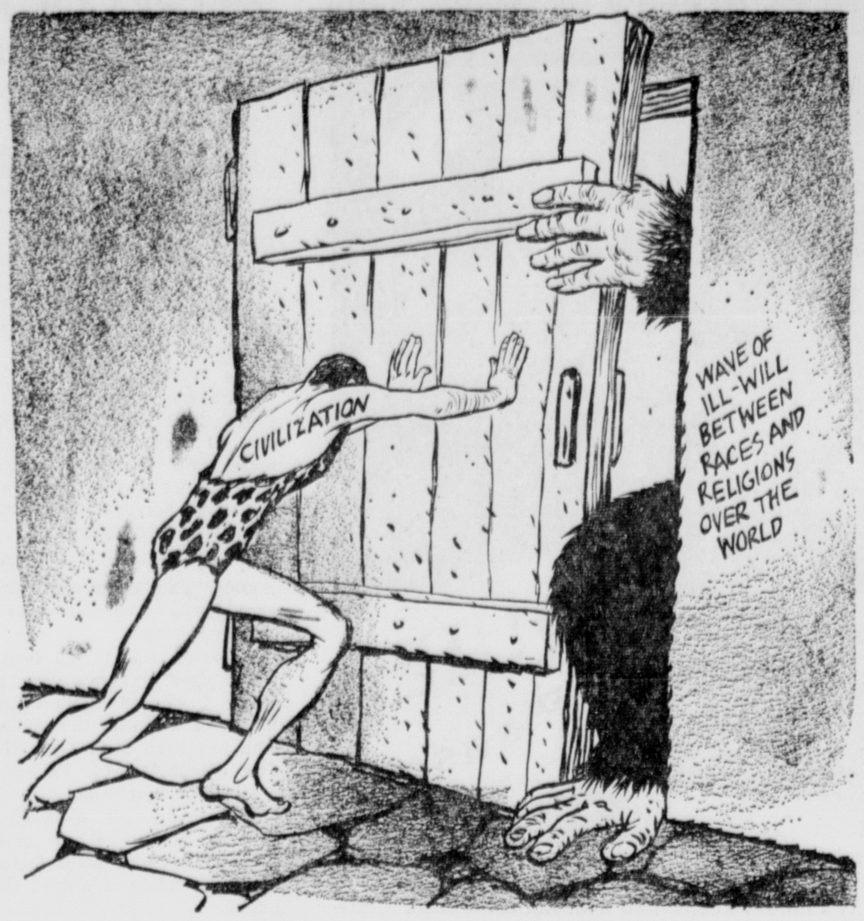
Well, what's your idea about such things as perhaps our own Rapid Transit District, a new road parallel to Highway 101, a need for a second crossing vs. everybody's unwillingness to be near its end and connecting links, and the question of east-west highways?

Letters of reasonable length will be welcome to space on this page. But let's set up one ground rule—just about enough has been said, for the time being, about the Shoreline. Everybody wants that improved and nobody wants it improved in ways that improve neither it nor the landscape, and at last the "scenic" designation is launched. Perhaps it will be of value both to the Shoreline and to other roads.

It seems pretty well settled that not only must improvement and expansion of Highway 101 go on, but sooner or later there must be another comparable fast north-west road. We have no real east-west road today. Sir Francis Drake Boulevard serves, but ultimately it must be a local-traffic affair, so this subject is wide open. Probably we need a reasonably fast though scenic road paralleling Sir Francis Drake and another farther north.

The foregoing kicks this subject off. Now what do YOU think?

CHALLENGED!



THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

HOW LONG IS A "WHOLE LIFE?"

A bandit shoved this note through the window of a young bank teller: "I am a sick man with only six months to live. Give me all your money or I'll shoot you in the heart."

The clerk handed over $780 but managed to get the license number of the robber's car. He relayed it to the police and the thief was captured in a few minutes.

The 22-year-old teller, who had his "whole life to live," was stricken with a heart attack and died just 19 days after the bank incident.

How well we would spend our remaining days, months or years if we clearly viewed them as so many opportunities to prove our love for God and for our fellow man.

"It is appointed unto men to die once and after this comes the judgment."

(Hebrews 9:27)

Keep me ever aware, O Holy Spirit, that life is but a springboard to eternity.

Virginia Was Doing Just Fine Until Everything Went Bang

SUMMER VACATION time is finally over, and reports of individual accomplishments are trickling in.

Virginia Congdon, secretary at the San Rafael City Hall, is back with a fractured wrist and a sprained ankle suffered in a water skiing accident at Clear Lake last weekend.

She says it happened like this: "I was doing fine when suddenly everything snapped—my wrist, my ankle and the strap on my swimming suit."

DEPUTY D.A. Tom Storer went perch fishing in the Drake's Bay surf and pulled in a 37-inch striped bass last Saturday. That's pretty good for the first striper he's ever caught.

This 50-mile hike craze is going too far.

Probation Officer Walter Busher and lawyer Leland Jordan fulfilled an ambition of long standing—hiking the Muir Trail. That's a rugged 300 miles—from Yosemite to Mt. Whitney, with 55-pound packs for survival.

Taking leisurely side trips for trout, they negotiated the trail in 24 days. They lost 10 pounds in the process but claim they've "never felt better."

We understand a John Stokely and son of San Rafael covered the same trail about the same time.

DON'T WAIT for the yellow cab in San Anselmo; you're going to have a long wait. Because Redwood Cab with maroon vehicles have taken over. The yellow cabs have gone out of business in that town.

A well-known architect and a young lady who owns a dress shop in town toppled into the swimming pool at Marin Golf Club the other night. It was all deliberate, and for a good cause. They jumped in the pool fully clothed for $600, and the money went to the Orphans of Italy.

IT'S GOOD to know other people have trouble spelling just like we do.

There's a state historical landmark at Marin Town and Country Club in Fairfax, with a metal plaque marking the home of Lord Fairfax. It's been there since 1960. Took almost three years to spot an error in the inscription. The word "descendant" was spelled "decedent."

Too late to look at the error now. They took it to the nearest state park, Samuel P. Taylor, where Supervisor Neil Power is going to have the plaque re-cast.

IT'S A BIT early yet, but if you have any questions concerning the Miss Universe contest for next year, you can contact Doug Weddell, San Rafael insurance man.

He's been named one of the sponsors of the California delegate to the Miss Universe Pageant for 1964.

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BOUQUET to the Marin Weather Man for his work this week in creating a truly Infinite Variety.

A BRICKBAT to the robber-of-blindmen's-cups who stole the spare resuscitator which Tamalpais Fire Department experts were building up from spare parts. Properly used, it could save lives; but to a thief it's only bad luck.

BOUQUETS to all the business firms, now numbering at least a half-dozen, who have cheerfully kicked in contributions for that forthcoming Stanford survey of new industries which might be attracted here.

TWO BOUQUETS for the Marin County Board of Supervisors, so often teased and abused—first for ordering a survey of possible savings through amalgamating special districts or other of our many units, second for going along with plans for making the Civic Center lagoon an ol' fishing hole for youngsters.

House Painters Know What Subdues Wife

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—If fortune ever favors me with a rebirth, I've decided to come back to earth as a painter.

Not as a Rebrandt or a Da Vinci.

Not even as a Picasso or a Dali.

Just as a house painter—a plain ordinary house painter.

IN A WORLD of chafing conformity, the house painter is about the freest soul I know. He bows to no man's bidding, and yields to no woman's whim or will.

It is probably their ability to defeat a woman on her own battlefield—her home — that makes me admire painters.

We have had our apartment painted a number of times in the 25 years we have been married—just about as many times as my wife has been able to face up to the chaos it causes.

EACH TIME is has been a battle of wits between my wife and the painters as to who would have his way. Each time the painters won—hands down.

It works out like this:

To begin with, the painters won't even come to your apartment until you've got it in perfect disorder. The rugs have to be removed, the furniture stacked in piles.

Tactfully, your wife makes them coffee and sandwiches, even runs to the supermarket to get them some luncheon beer. They take these offerings with the sullen air of gods accepting tribute.

"It would be nice if you'd do the bedroom first," the wife then suggests.

THE PAINTERS exchange looks.

One silently heads for the living room, the other for the kitchen. The bedroom will be done last.

"That isn't quite the shade of blue I chose," the wife tells the man in the kitchen.

"That's the color in the bucket," says the painter, slapping another brush of it on the wall with the bold stroke of a born sadist.

WHEN THE JOB is done a truce is declared. Husband and wife pour drinks, and all shake hands.

"I'll say one thing, lady," says one painter, "You sure got good taste. This is the prettiest apartment we painted all year. Eh, Joe?"

"Why not?" replies the second painter, pouring himself a second drink.

After they have gone, the wife looks around the kitchen critically and says:

"They did do a nice job, and I do like this color blue. I guess they weren't such bad fellows after all."

How do painters get away with it? What do they know about handling women the rest of us male mice don't?

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Hard Choices For Marin

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I wish to express my appreciation for your generous editorial of Aug. 31 backing me for appointment to the Bay Area Transportation Study Commission. I would indeed like to serve on that commission, which promises to be a vital and significant body.

To produce a useful transportation plan—one designed to move people and goods with reasonable convenience, and one that we could afford to pay for—will be no mean task.

To produce a plan that would at the same time be politically achievable will be even more exacting, for the commission will, I think, have to assure local government officials that the transportation system, once realized, would be something their citizens could live with—in terms of its aesthetics, in terms of its effect on the land use patterns to which they are accustomed.

It strikes me that the Independent-Journal could play here, as it has done in other important civic issues, a substantial part in sounding out public opinion, in making Marin citizens aware of some of the hard choices we may have to face between maintaining mobility and maintaining our rural environment.

Regarding the proposed second crossing between Tiburon and San Francisco, a subject in which I know you are much interested, I do not pretend to be detached in my feelings. But I do agree that—barring some dramatic technological innovation—we will need another north-south crossing, and I think I have achieved enough perspective to evaluate the Tiburon possibility fairly against other, as yet inadequately examined alternatives.

I do confess to having strong loyalties to this community and this county. But perhaps appreciation of what is important to one's own part of the Bay Area is a necessary first step toward appreciating what is important to the others.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Lasky Book Blasts At Kennedy, Hotter'n A Big Firecracker

WASHINGTON—To those who feel that President Kennedy has long basked in the glow of a substantially uncritical press, Victor Lasky's "J. F. K., the Man and the Myth" is exactly what the doctor ordered.

This book is going to create an explosive stir in political Washington. If it catches on, as is likely, it may be one of the hottest items of conversation in the country clubs and A.D.A. circles since the U. S. went off the gold standard or Babe Ruth hit 60 home runs.

Here is a crackling volume of 586 pages of unrelieved and unmerciful criticism of John F. Kennedy from political birth to Presidential press conference, plus 87 more pages of appendices, sources, and index. (The Macmillan Co., N. Y., $7.95.)

WITH ANOTHER election just around the corner, it will be hard for anybody to be indifferent toward "J. F. K., the Man and the Myth."

It will painfully infuriate the all-out Kennedy admirers. It will deliciously delight the all-out Kennedy critics. It will nourish the detachment of independents who can now see, perhaps more fully than before, why the Kennedy performance raises honest doubts in the minds of some people.

Mr. Lasky avoids vituperation. He neither rants nor calls names. He relies very little upon sweeping assertions drawn from his own bias. He documents his contentions with pertinent quotations from many respectable sources, mostly liberal.

THE TWO KINDS of criticism of the President which the Lasky book seems to me to develop with the most care are:

1—The extent to which Mr. Kennedy's instincts, views, and policies have wrenched and disappointed the Democratic liberals.

2—The extent to which he has—as Congressman Kennedy, Senator Kennedy, and President Kennedy—been on both sides of so many big questions.

Assuming that Mr. Lasky's quotations and sources — which he cites explicitly and at length—are accurate, it develops that during his public career thus far Mr. Kennedy in varying degrees has been for and against: (a) McCarthyism; (b) the reciprocal trade treaties; (c) President Truman's defense of Korea; (d) U.S. involvement in South Viet Nam; (e) high farm price supports; (f) diplomatic recognition of the Vatican; (g) defense of Quemoy and Matsu; (h) expressing regrets to Khrushchev over the U-2 incident; (i) the St. Lawrence Seaway; (j) confirmation of Lewis Strauss as Secretary of Commerce.

OBVIOUSLY any man in public life will reasonably change his mind some time or other on something or other. But this is a pretty formidable list for a politician who accused his political opponent (Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge) of "lacking integrity and sincerity" because Lodge changed his position on one issue, the Taft-Hartley law.

The most thoughtful passage in Mr. Lasky's book is this:

"Lacking interior convictions and purpose, Kennedy's most noticeable quality lay not in adherence to a coherent view of things but to a remarkable ability to acquire whatever happened to be the political fashion of the moment . . . he has indeed been responsive to national moods. 'Kennedy was committed only to non-commitment,' was the way James Burns put it. Neither liberal nor conservative, Kennedy's peculiar strength lay not in the possession of any particular ideological viewpoint, but rather in its absence."

If President Kennedy were being blasted and buffeted by hostile criticism, I would warn against "J. F. K., the Man and the Myth" as being dangerously one-sided. As it is, it is a useful corrective.

NOT TOO FAR OUT

Only 16 House Seats Appear Unfairly Apportioned Now

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON—An "ideal" apportionment of seats in the U.S. House, designed to give urban, suburban and rural areas their fairest portion of representation, would not result in any great shifts in Congress, a Congressional Quarterly survey indicates.

Results of detailed study of population patterns show that only 16 of the 435 House seats would be shifted in an "ideal" apportionment — six to "urban" areas (those with 50,000 or more population) and 10 to "suburban" areas.

This relatively slight gain for metropolitan areas would be made at the expense of "rural" areas which would lose 12 seats and a group of "mixed" areas—those lacking any predominant population characteristic—which would lose four seats.

THE CURRENT House of Representatives was found to have 103 predominantly "urban" seats, 50 "suburban" seats. Another 79 seats lacked any predominant characteristic and were listed as "mixed."

By a study of actual distribution of population in each state, it was then determined what changes would be necessary—and practicable from a geographic point of view—to create an "ideal" apportionment of the most equally populated and homogeneous districts.

The CQ study was based on districts of the 88th Congress, elected in 1962. Since the 1960 Census, the study showed, rural overrepresentation in Congress had been trimmed by nine seats with new seats going both to urban and suburban areas through redistricting action in 19 states.

THE EXTENT of inequality now in effect will diminish further in 1964 when new redistricting laws, passed this year by Wisconsin and Michigan, go into effect. These laws trim two more rural seats (leaving rural areas with 10 instead of 12 too many seats) and add two to the suburban seat category.

A summary of the "ideal" changes following the most recent redistricting actions:

Urban, raised from 103 to "ideal" 109, six added.

Suburban, raised from 52 to "ideal" 60, eight added.

Rural, dropped from 201 to "ideal" 191, 10 cut.

Mixed, dropped from 79 to "ideal" 75, four cut.

A study of regional patterns show that the only area of the country which would have major shifts in an "ideal" reapportionment would be the South.

BENNETT CERF

On Madison Avenue, a lady patient descended upon society dentist Pullman's office for the fifth time to command him to grind down her false teeth again. "I tell you they don't fit," she insisted. "Okay," said Dr. Pullman reluctantly. "I'll do it one last time. But by every test, they should fit your mouth perfectly as they are."

"Who said anything about my mouth?" snapped the lady. "They don't fit in the glass."

A sour-looking gent pushed his way into a roadside tavern, leading on a chain a huge 12-foot alligator. "Do you serve dames in this joint?" he demanded. "Certainly," said the proprietor. "Men—women — they're all welcome here, so long as they pay cash." "Good," said the sour-looking one. "Serve me a hamburger, and serve my alligator a dame."

Cape Getting Ready For Planets

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Cape Canaveral is expanding rapidly to make room for the mammoth launching facilities from which astronauts one day will vault toward the moon and planets.

For 13 years, Canaveral's gantries have been confined to a 15,000-acre tract which juts into the Atlantic Ocean like a giant arrowhead (see map). Now the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) is acquiring 87,000 additional acres on which to construct facilities of almost unbelievable dimension.

NASA is spending about 55 million dollars for the land, most of it on Merritt Island—a large land mass west and northwest of the present Cape and separated from it by the Banana River. The land is mainly swamp, woods and orange groves.

More than 5,000 construction workers are on the job already. By mid-1964, there will be 4,000 more. In the next three years, 1.7 billion dollars will be spent on building in the new and old areas and Canaveral's total working population is expected to climb from 25,000 to 47,000.

Work has started on several buildings which will form the industrial heart of NASA's Merritt Island operations. The operations center will be a sprawling structure with sections up to 10 stories tall. It will have checkout facilities for the Project Gemini two-man spacecraft and the Project Apollo moonship, plus office space for 1,800 administrative personnel.

When supply, environmental control, fuel, storage and other buildings are completed in the industrial area in about two years, it will resemble a college campus.

Towering high above anything else on Merritt Island will be the elements of Launch Complex No. 39, which will include three launching pads for the 360-foot-tall Saturn 5 rocket which will boost Apollo astronauts toward the moon late in this decade. Center of the complex will be a Vertical Assembly Building where four Saturn 5 rockets can be assembled and checked simultaneously. The building will be 524 feet tall, more than two city blocks long and 230 feet wide.

Much of the land being purchased by NASA will serve merely as a buffer zone to protect the ears and property of citizens from noise and shock waves created by the big rockets, which will generate 7.5 million pounds of thrust. A sizeable tract has been earmarked for facilities for the Nova class rockets planned beyond Gemini. These may top the 500-foot mark and will be used for manned planetary journeys.

The space agency also is building a railroad and a four-lane causeway to breach two rivers which separate the present Cape Canaveral from the Florida mainland.

An island has been created in the Banana River to accommodate one of two launching pads for Titan 3, an Air Force rocket being developed to carry the Dyna-Soar manned space glider and other military space payloads.

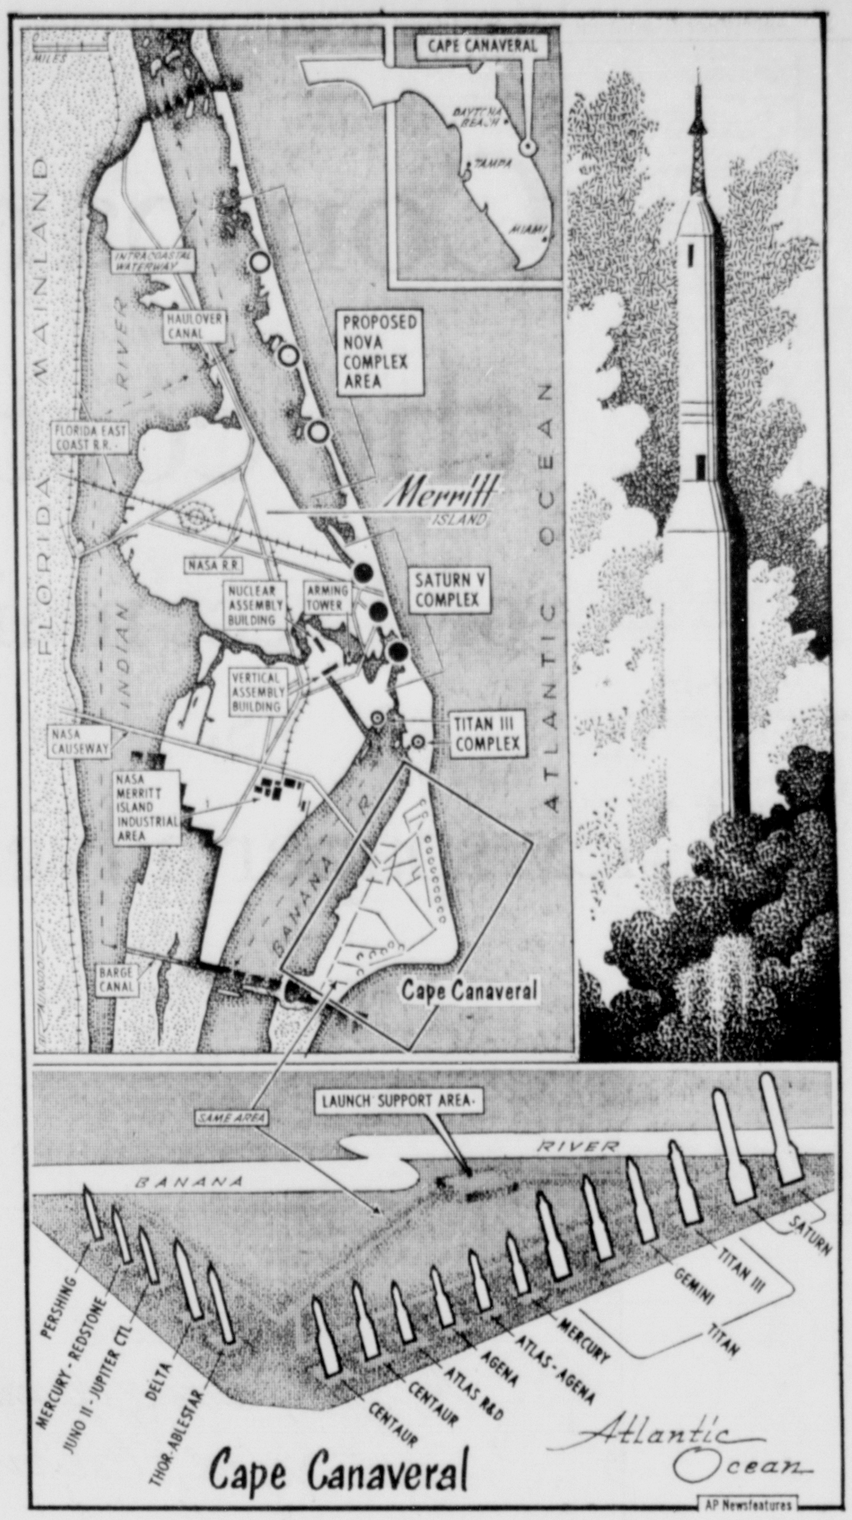
In the present Cape area, work is nearing completion on Launch Complex 37 for two pads for the early Saturn 1 and 1-B models, each of which will have 1.5 million pounds thrust in the first stage. Four Saturn 1s have been test-fired successfully from Complex No. 34. A number of operational missions are planned for these boosters, including early earth orbit flights of the Apollo mooncraft.

Complexes 19 and 20, once used in the Titan 1 missile test program, are being rebuilt for Titan 2, which will boost Gemini astronaut teams, and for an early model of the Titan 3. First Gemini manned flight is scheduled late next year.

Complex 14, from which Atlas rockets successfully hurled four Americans into orbit, is being redesigned for the Atlas-Agena rockets which will launch the target satellites for later Gemini rendezvous maneuvers. Complex 13, former Atlas testing area, is being redone as an Atlas-Agena pad for a number of unmanned space explorations.

A second Atlas-Centaur launch pad is nearing completion. This rocket, which burns high-energy liquid hydrogen fuel in the second stage, will boost unmanned spacecraft to explore the moon in advance of the Apollo astronaut landings.

Mercury Control Center, from which all six U.S. astronaut flights were directed, is being enlarged and redesigned for Gemini.



A POSSIBLE OUT OF FOUR MEN

India's Nehru Is Looking Around For A Successor

BY S. G. ROY

NEW DELHI (UPI) — India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru is at last facing up to the crucial question: After him, who?

The question has been raised many times before—by newsmen, by opposition political leaders, even by members of his own Congress Party, and Nehru has always avoided a direct answer. In a democracy a man does not nominate his own successor, he says.

Yet as he approaches his 74th birthday, Nehru knows that he now must answer the question in some form so if he should suddenly be disabled, India would not be thrown into panic because of a political vacuum.

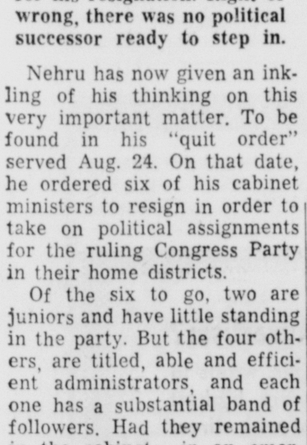
Nehru is the unquestioned leader of India today, just as he has been ever since this nation achieved independence from the British in 1947 after years of struggle and turmoil. He has such popularity that even after the Communist Chinese invaded Indian territory last year and made a shambles of Nehru's neutralist policy, there was no public outcry for his resignation. Right or wrong, there was no political successor ready to step in.

Nehru has now given an inkling of his thinking on this very important matter. To be found in his "quit order" served Aug. 24. On that date, he ordered six of his cabinet ministers to resign in order to take on political assignments for the ruling Congress Party in their home districts.

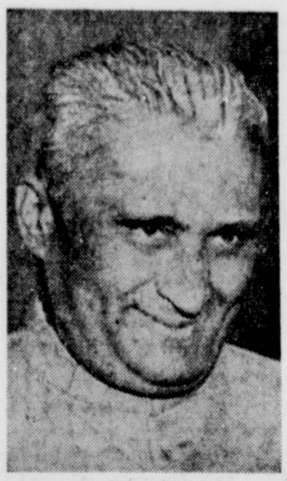
Of the six to go, two are juniors and have little standing in the party. But the four others, are titled, able and efficient administrators, and each one has a substantial band of followers. Had they remained in the cabinet, in an emergency each would have been a contestant for the leadership of the party—and of India itself.

These four "possibilities" reckoned to succeed Nehru are:

Finance Minister Morarji Desai, Communications Minister Jagjivan Ram, Home Minister Lal Bahadur Shasti, and Food and Agriculture Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, and Food and Agriculture Minister Sadasiv K. Patil. Their ranking in the cabinet followed this order.



JAGJIVAN RAM
Communications



SADASIV K. PATIL
Food, agriculture

MORARJI DESAI
Finance minister

Of the four ordered to the "Wilderness," only two have fair prospects of staging a come-back to the cabinet—Lal Bahadur Shastri and Sadasiv Patil.

A year ago, Morarji Desai was considered the most probable successor to Nehru. A stern man in many ways, he has lately angered many of his Congress Party colleagues because he has been found to be completely blind to public opinion.

He is branded as a "right reactionary" by the so-called Nehruites of the Congress party. The Conservatives, once his supporters, are having second thoughts over his administrative ability.

The third man in the present hierfarchy, Jagjivan Ram, belongs to the scheduled castes. This, of course, is no bar to his becoming the prime minister.

But because of certain administrative lapses, which are talked about but not written into a charge sheet, Jagjivan Ram is no longer so popular with the party. In any cabinet reshuffle he was almost certain to be sent out.

The choice of the successor to Nehru would have to be made, then, from the two remaining "possibles," the fourth and fifth men on the present cabinet, Lal Bahadur Shastri and Sadasiv Patil.

Patil, 63, is an able organizer, an eloquent and effective speaker, a ruthless opponent, a man of action and quick decisions, and one who believes in getting things done. If India needs a strong man after Nehru, then his star will certainly smile on him.

The men who steer the middle course between the rightists and the leftists in the Congress Party—and ultimately it is they who will matter in the choice of Nehru's successor—will not come out for Patil because he is not acceptable to all the party factions.

It is here on the question of who will be the compromise personality that Lal Bahadur is likely to outstrip others who may be in the running for the country's leadership after Nehru is gone.

The 59-year-old, short statured, unassuming Lal Bahadur has a knack of pleasing almost everyone. Hailing from Allahabad, Nehru's home town, he has steadily built up a position for himself in the party. For all practical purposes he is next to Nehru now. Even though he may rank fourth in the cabinet in the order of seniority. Today, he is Nehru's first adviser.

According to present plans, Nehru will ask Lal Bahadur to head the organizational wing of the ruling party after he is relieved of his ministerial responsibility.

Lal Bahadur looks like a man with a soft heart. But he can be strong, even stern, when the occasion demands it. Although he subscribes to some of the outdated ideas of the congress such as liquor prohibition, he is no faddist.

If, as the president of the congress, he is able to pull up the organization and put an end to the incessant arguments between factions, or at least to reduce these to a harmless minimum, he will establish himself as the "redeemer" of the flagging ruling party.

By that time, too, his two seniors in the present cabinet hierarchy, Morarji Desai and Jagjivan Ram, will not be present to challenge his position.

This, perhaps, is the real significance of the Nehru plan to draft ministers for undramatic party work in the hinterland.

A Weekly Page of Background Information

THIS WEEK In The World

Ted Kennedy Meets Mrs. Nhu

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Sen. Edward (Ted) Kennedy of Massachusetts is known as a good talker but for 90 minutes this week he was a man of few words.

It's not that the president's youngest brother didn't have anything to say. He preferred to listen.

It happened in Belgrade, where Kennedy is attending a conference of the Inter-Parliamentarian Union. Also attending was Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu, the first lady of South Viet Nam.

Shortly after her arrival in Belgrade, Mrs. Nhu, who is the sister-in-law of South Viet Nam's bachelor president, criticized President John F. Kennedy as an "appeaser" because of his role in trying to end the crisis between Buddhists and officials of her country.

During the week it was reported that Henry Cabot Lodge, ambassador to Saigon, has suggested to South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem that he remove his brother, Mrs. Nhu's husband, from a place of power. Nhu has been blamed for the Diem regime's harsh action against the Buddhists.

Because of the friction between the Kennedy administration and the Diem government, the president's brother had attempted to avoid what might have been an embarrassing encounter with Mrs. Nhu in Belgrade.

But Rep. Kathryn St. George, a New York Republican also attending the Belgrade conference, had a woman-to-woman chat with Mrs. Nhu. Then she brought Mrs. Nhu and the senator together.

When they sat down to lunch, Mrs. Nhu began talking in French-accented English, telling her side of the story. She spoke rapidly and Kennedy didn't get a chance to say much.

"She wanted to talk to me," Kennedy said afterward. "She wants to talk to anyone and everybody."

"She's quite a gal," Rep. St. George said. "She did not stop stalking from one minute to the other."

Around The World Around The Clock

Washington—A hearing by the House Un-American Activities Committee on the unauthorized trip of American students to Cuba was punctuated with disorder. Supporters of the students were ejected from the hearing room for disorderly behavior and there was considerable scuffling between sympathizers and the police on the outside. Five persons were jailed.

Alabama—President Kennedy federalized the National Guard in Alabama to enforce court-ordered integration of schools in Birmingham, Tuskegee and Mobile. But many white students boycotted classes and there was some talk about setting up private schools for those who do not wish to attend classes with Negroes.

Moscow-Peking—In Moscow the Soviet government ordered service stopped on a train from Peking because it was bringing anti-Khrushchev pamphlets into the Soviet Union. In Peking the Mao regime charged the Soviet Union with "hooliganism" for allegedly mistreating Chinese near the border.

Washington—The Senate began debate on whether to ratify the partial nuclear test ban treaty. Sens. Barry Goldwater, John Stennis and Richard B. Russell said they would vote against it but Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen came out for it. On Thursday the United States conducted underground tests in Nevada.

State Fair Proves To Be Success; Manager Has Big Plans For Future

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—The California State Fair and Exposition closed its gates Monday following one of the more successful runs in recent years.

Despite a disappointing turnout of about 29,000 persons on the final and 13th day of the show—lowest single day's attendance at the fair in many a year—the fair reported attendance of 914,311.

Of the total attendance, an estimated 451,590 was paid. Persons under 16 were admitted free and the gate admission for those who paid was $1. The revenue from admissions was $451,590.

Total revenue estimated for the fair was about 1.7 million dollars.

The gates hardly had swung closed before Ted Rosequist, manager of the fair, revealed plans for a bigger and more decentralized fair in the future, which the bulk of the new plans centered around more horse racing.

The new plan would provide for a spring festival and quarter horse race meeting in the latter part of March and early April, a horse show in late June, the regular fair in August and September—expanded to 17 days—and the open livestock show and sales in December.

Rosequist said the spread-out program of activities would fit in well with a move to the new 1,000-acre fair site northeast of Sacramento, if such an event takes place. However, he said the changes were being put into effect primarily because of limitations at the present plant.

"Regardless of whether we have a new fair or not, we will be proceeding on this basis because the facilities at the present grounds no longer are able to handle the cattle, horses for the horse show, horses for the rodeo, and race horses at a single time," Rosequist said.

At present, a spring festival is planned from March 11 through April 4. Excluding Sundays and Good Friday, this would provide 21 days of quarter horse racing in that period.

Rosequist said it would require a parimutuel betting handle of $175,000 per day on the quarter horse races in order to break even and the fair hoped to gross $200,000 a day. This compares with an average daily handle of $600,000 a day when the thoroughbreds run during the regular fair.

When the fair sought the quarter horse racing days, which it was granted recently by the horse racing commission, it said there were not plans to increase the thoroughbred racing at the regular fair. However, Rosequist said the fair indicated it would seek an additional four days of thoroughbred racing for the 1965 fair.

With 14 days of thoroughbred racing, a 17-day regular fair is planned.

The horse show—oldest in the west—has been held in recent years with the spring festival but would be moved to late June, to be held on its own. Rosequist said attendance at recent horse shows has been less enthusiastic and the change to better weather could help.

Another major change would be the move of the open cattle judging and sales to a December date. This would permit fair facilities to be used for the junior divisions—Future Farmers of America and 4-H Clubs—during the fair. At this year's show, the junior division had to move out one night and the open division move in the next day.

While the rodeo was a sell-out performance on several nights and probably will show a net profit of more than $5,000 for the fair, Rosequist said the night show featuring Jimmy Durante was a loser by about $20,000.

The night show, at least on the present scale, probably will be dropped from the state fair menu again in future years, he said.

Gas Sold In State Equals 95 Million Miles Of Travel

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—Californians bought enough gasoline during the year ended last June 30 to travel around the earth more than seven times a minute for the whole year.

The state board of equalization said taxes were paid on distributions of 6,331,380,000 gallons of gasoline during the year. At an average of 15 miles to the gallon, this would have produced nearly 95 billion miles miles of travel.

As for volume, the board said the gasoline would have filled a train of tank cars stretching all the way across the continent and half way back again.

A total of $418,195,000 in taxes was paid on the gasoline during year, along with other fuels, the board said. This was up 22.6 million dollars from the previous year and also a record.

Taxes during the current fiscal year should be even greater, with a one-cent a gallon increase in the tax scheduled to take effect Oct. 1.

Out of the total taxes, $1,187,000 came from such liquefield petroleum gases as butane and propane, also taxed at six cents a gallon, and $2,010,000 came from the seven-cent tax on diesel fuel.

Another 14.25 million dollars was added from the transportation tax of 1.5 per cent levied on the gross receipts of for-hire trucks and buses.

After refunds were made, net revenues from all fuel taxes amounted to $403,236,000 for the year, the board said.

The board said taxes on gasoline were up 5.2 per cent, were up 7.5 per cent on gross receipts, and 7 per cent on diesel fuel but dropped 8 per cent on the liquefied petroleum gases.

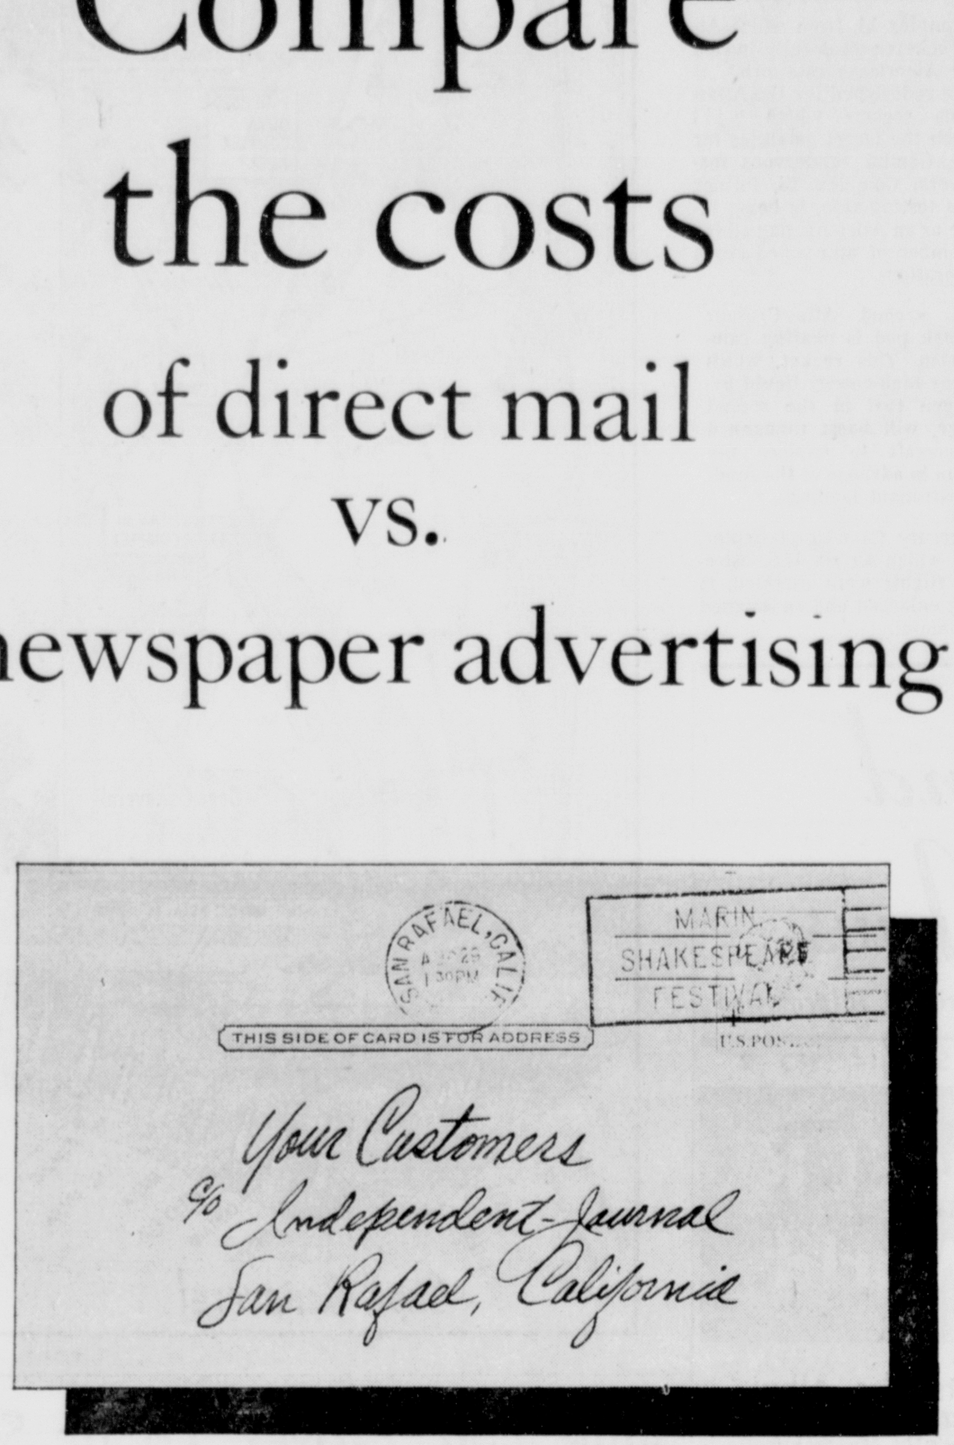
I-J newspaper advertising

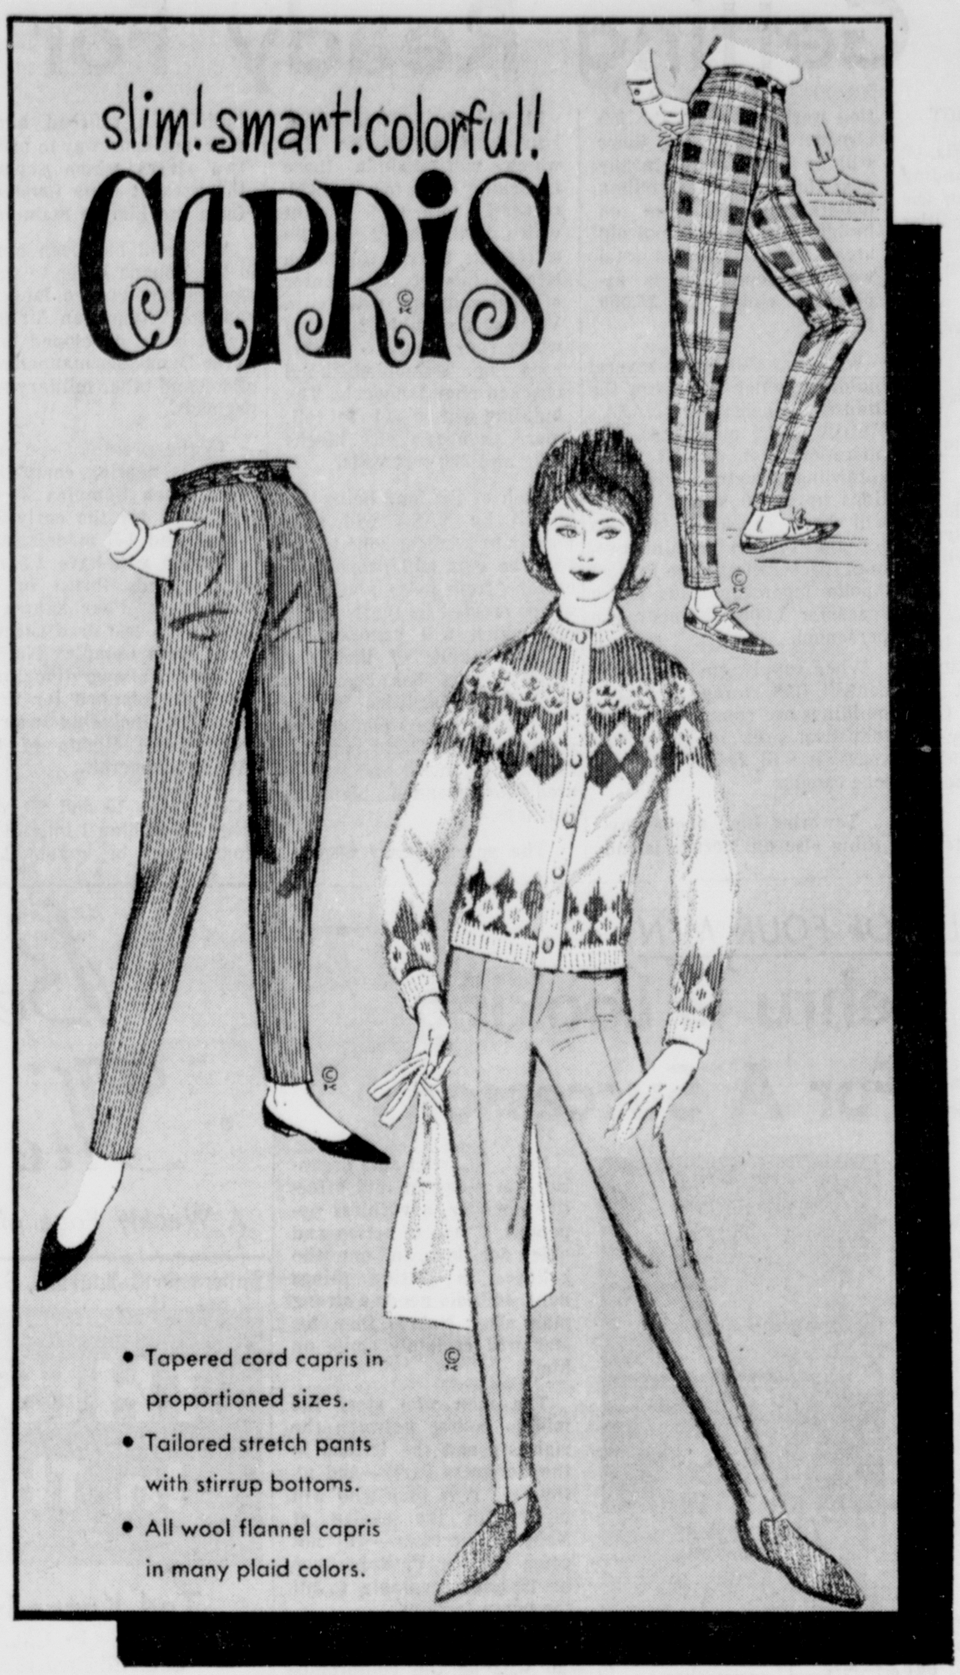


COST: $1,288.68

to send a 4c postcard to the Independent-Journal's 32,217 subscriber families

As an advertiser, it would cost you $1,288.68 to send a 4c postcard to the 32,217 Independent-Journal subscriber families in Marin. Cards, printing and addressing would cost you extra. Yet for just $76.50, you could run a 30" ad in the Independent-Journal. This is why more and more advertisers who want results at lowest advertising cost use the I-J on a consistent basis.

They know their message "gets home" in the I-J, because readers want and subscribe to it. In contrast, research shows that 53% of people throw direct mail away without reading it. A bare 20% read direct mail with interest. Unasked for, uninvited, direct mail goes mostly un-read. Again this brings up the cost.



COST: $76.50

to run a 30" ad, 3 times the size of a postcard, in the Independent-Journal

Your ads in the Independent-Journal are read, scrutinized, acted upon. Your product or service goes on actual shopping lists of the most-able-to-buy families in Marin. Your message gets to people, because people want to read it . . . in the I-J. Dollar for dollar, your advertising in the Independent-Journal produces more sales at lowest possible cost. You pay for results, not guesswork.

May we suggest you call in an Independent-Journal advertising representative? Let him show you how you can start your own advertising plan for more sales, more profits.

For the cost of one postcard mailing, you can buy a full advertising campaign in the INDEPENDENT-JOURNAL

Using the same figure, $1,288.68 (cost of mailing one 4c postcard to the Independent-Journal's 32,217 subscribers), here is what that same amount of money would buy on a regular schedule in the I-J:

$1,288.68 WILL BUY:

- 16–30" advertisements or one ad per week for 4 months in the I-J
- 25–20" advertisements or one ad per week for 6 months in the I-J
- 50–10" advertisements or one ad per week for 50 weeks in the year

So as to be conservative, we have used the maximum retail rate, or $2.55 per inch, as the basis of cost for the above newspaper schedules in the I-J.

What about the cost of circulars vs. advertising in the Independent-Journal?

The mailing cost alone for circulars again underscores the advertising economy of using the I-J. Even at the lowest bulk rate for circulars (2.625c per copy), postage charges to reach the I-J's 32,217 subscribers would amount to $793.20. In addition would be the considerable cost of paper, printing and addressing, amounting to hundreds of dollars at the very least. Place this against the impact of major space in the I-J, for less money, and you see why astute retail advertisers specify the Independent-Journal first in their advertising plans in Marin County. More impact, more believability, more sales, more profits . . . at lowest cost. And no waste!

Which Makes Dollars and Sense to You as an Advertiser?

- Your I-J newspaper audience subscribes to the newspaper, wants to read your advertising (for women, newspaper ads score highest readership of all features, next to news). Compare that with direct mail.
- Your message in the Independent-Journal reaches the most concentrated buying force in Marin County—32,217 families. Contrast that with direct mail which is not paid circulation, not invited into the home. Can "wastebasket" mail compete with solid readership?
- Your advertising gains character, carries far more weight with your audience when it's in the Independent-Journal. (Advertising doesn't work in a "vacuum", but in the warm, inviting climate of full readership. Compare that with direct mail).
- Over 71% of the newspaper audience reads the newspaper page by page, spend an average of 37 minutes reading it. The newspaper is part of the personal lives of its audience, day in, day out. Contrast that with direct mail—53% of which is thrown away, unread.
- In the I-J, your store, your business, gains "image," stature; your messages carry believability and impact which direct mail cannot deliver.
- You reach a solid, responsive audience at lowest cost-per-thousand circulation in the I-J—the only daily newspaper and the only advertising medium in Marin County with circulation verified by the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

WINNING BRIDGE

Average Player Likes To See Bridge Expert Makes Mistakes

The average player likes nothing better than to watch the experts making mistakes.

This may account for the perennial popularity of "Championship Bridge" on television. Sometimes the experts play like champions, of course, as in this case:

Declarer was Albert H. Morehead, who has covered the bridge beat for the New York Times for the past 26 years.

OLDER, HEAVIER

A few years older and a few pounds heavier than when I first knew him at the beginning of his career, Morehead has preserved the habit of playing the right card at the right time.

In this hand Morehead took the ace of diamonds, drew three rounds of trumps, cashed the king of diamonds and ruffed a diamond in dummy.

By this time he know that West had started with six red cards and, presumably, at least five spades for his spade overcall. West couldn't have more than two clubs, and East could not have more than two spades.

TRICK GETS LOST

Morehead saw a way to sweep a trick under the carpet, where it would get lost.

He cashed the king and ace of clubs and led a spade from dummy, playing the king from his hand.

West took the ace of spades but could not collect the four tricks that seemed to belong to the defense.

SPADE QUEEN

If West continued with the queen of spades, he could get a third spade trick but would then have to lead a fourth spade, allowing declarer to ruff in dummy and discard the losing club from his hand.

If West led a low spade after taking the ace, East could win the trick and cash a club, but then East would be out of spades.

East would have to lead either a club or a diamond—and dummy would ruff while South discarded his losing spade.

Incredible Cardinals Close In On Shaky Dodgers

Those incredible Cardinals simply won't quit, particularly one bird who ruined the Dodgers last year and appears to be doing the same thing again this year.

The culprit is 34-year-old Curt Simmons, generally considered "all washed up" when he was dispatched to the minors four years ago.

This same Simmons, who did not cost the Cardinals a penny cost the Dodgers more than a quarter million dollars last year when he shut them out in the final game of the season and forced them into a playoff.

He was up to his same old tricks last night when he pitched his third consecutive shutout in a space of nine days to beat both Warren Spahn and the Milwaukee Braves, 7-0, and boost the streaking Cards within 2½ games of the National League lead.

The victory was the seventh in a row for the Cardinals and their 16th in the last 17 games. It not only ended an eight-game winning streak by Spahn but also enabled the Cards to gain a half game on the somewhat shaky Dodgers. They lost the opener of their twi-nighter to the Phillies, 3-2, but won the nightcap, 2-1.

Cardinal Manager Johnny Keane called Simmons "superb."

The veteran southpaw was all that and then some.

He gave up only five singles, struck out seven and contributed a run-producing double during a five-run second inning rally that clinched his 15th victory.

Not bad for a guy who lost his big toe on his left foot in a power lawn mower in 1953, supposedly lost his fast ball in 1955 and lost his major league address, temporarily anyway, in 1959.

Simmons now has pitched six shutouts this season, equalling his personal high for one season which he set during his salad days with the Phillies in 1952.

The Cards provided him with a quick lead last night when Ken Boyer belted his 22nd homer in the first inning following a double by Stan Musial. Spahn, who was chased in the second inning, suffered his sixth loss compared with 20 victories.

The Dodgers dropped their opener to the Phils when Maury Wills' wild throw in the ninth inning enabled two runs to score after Frank Howard had put Los Angeles ahead with a two-run homer in the top of the ninth.

Chris Short struck out 14 and hurled a four-hitter for his seventh win but the real hero for the Phils was Don Hoak, who barrelled into Wills so hard on the potential game-ending double play ball that he caused the L.A. shortstop to throw wildly.

Sandy Koufax started for the Dodgers, struck out eight to run his N.L. strikeout record to 284, and gave way in the eighth to loser Larry Sherry.

Ron Perranoski, who also saw action in the opener, picked up his 15th victory in the nightcap when he blanked the Phillies over the last three innings.

The Dodgers broke a 1-all tie in the eighth when Ken McMullen grounded out to first baseman Roy Sievers with the bases full to account for the winning run. Sievers had no play at the plate after loser Dennis Bennett loaded the bases by yielding a single to Tommy Davis, a double to Howard and an intentional walk to Bill Skowron.

In other N.L. games, the Pirates beat the Giants, 5-4, in 13 innings, the Colts blanked the Mets, 1-0, and the Cubs nipped the Reds, 3-2.

The Yankees clinched their fourth straight American League pennant with a 2-0 victory over the Twins, the White Sox defeated the Senators, 5-2, the Tigers beat the Orioles, 3-2, the Red Sox downed the Athletics, 7-3, and the Indians out-lasted the Angels, 7-6.

49er Trades Have Drawn Blanks; S.F. Picked To Finish In Cellar

RANDOL

The wake for the 49ers was a howling success, but there were mighty few kind words for the deceased. The Los Angeles Rams patted the last shovelful of dirt into place last Sunday, and that should have been the end of it.

All week long there has been moaning and groaning from the camp of the 49ers, and rumor has it that the Niners themselves will show up for the season opener against the Minnesota Vikings this Sunday at Kezar.

Dead or alive, you can bet the team that shows up will be just a ghost of its former self.

Football fans are an articulate bunch, and all week long my ear has been bent by complaints, suggestions and second guesses. Most frequent is the cry that, in the past five years, the Niners have traded away enough good men to form a team that could trounce the derelicts who are left.

A MOOT QUESTION, but probably a stretch of actual fact. No question, the Niners have dealt away some goodies. But the most damning fact is being overlooked: It is not that good men were sent packing but that the Niners got so little in return.

It has been a 49er policy of questionable merit to trade almost exclusively for future draft choices rather than for men who could help NOW. A piece of paper won't score many touchdowns for you. Or stop many.

Latest to go in this manner is Karl Kammerer, described just two months ago as a man whose "size, agility and agressiveness tab him as one of the best linebackers in 49er annals." Maybe the Niners can pick him up again after the Washington Redskins have worn him out and discarded him.

ON ONLY one occasion have the 49ers scored high in the matter of future draft choices. In 1961 the Niners picked up Bill Kilmer, Jim Johnson and Bernie Casey on the first round of selections.

Strangely enough, Coach Red Hickey has a combination of young men on his roster with tremendous potential. Instead of building strongly on these youngsters, Hickey goes with old timers whose last shot at a title was 'way back in 1957 B.H., (Before Hickey, that is).

For contrast, consider the Dallas Cowboys. Just four years ago this team was created from has-beens and cast-offs from other NFL clubs in a most shameful bit of dealing from the bottom of the deck.

WITH JUST six of their original 36 starters, the Cowboys have built a team that is picked by many experts to win the Eastern Conference this year.

San Francisco's Sunday opponents, the Vikings, are working toward the top of the heap in only their third season. The Vikes have retained only three of their original starters.

It would seem that Dallas and Minnesota have shown the way while the Niner coaches and management continue to try it the hard way. Even Aesop recognized the fallacy of this approach a few centuries ago. Coach Hickey and Owner Morabito should believe in fables.

The 49ers are crippled, without an attack, and low in morale, and the hard bumps are yet to come. There is little hope for anything but disaster in the season ahead unless Hickey comes up with some new wrinkles. And I hope it isn't the "Shotgun" again.

THROUGH THE eyes of a press box quarterback, the one great possibility for offense would be developing the optional pass to the extent that ALL backs would be eligible to throw at any time, off ANY play. Quarterbacks are specialists at passing, but every football player can toss the ball to some extent.

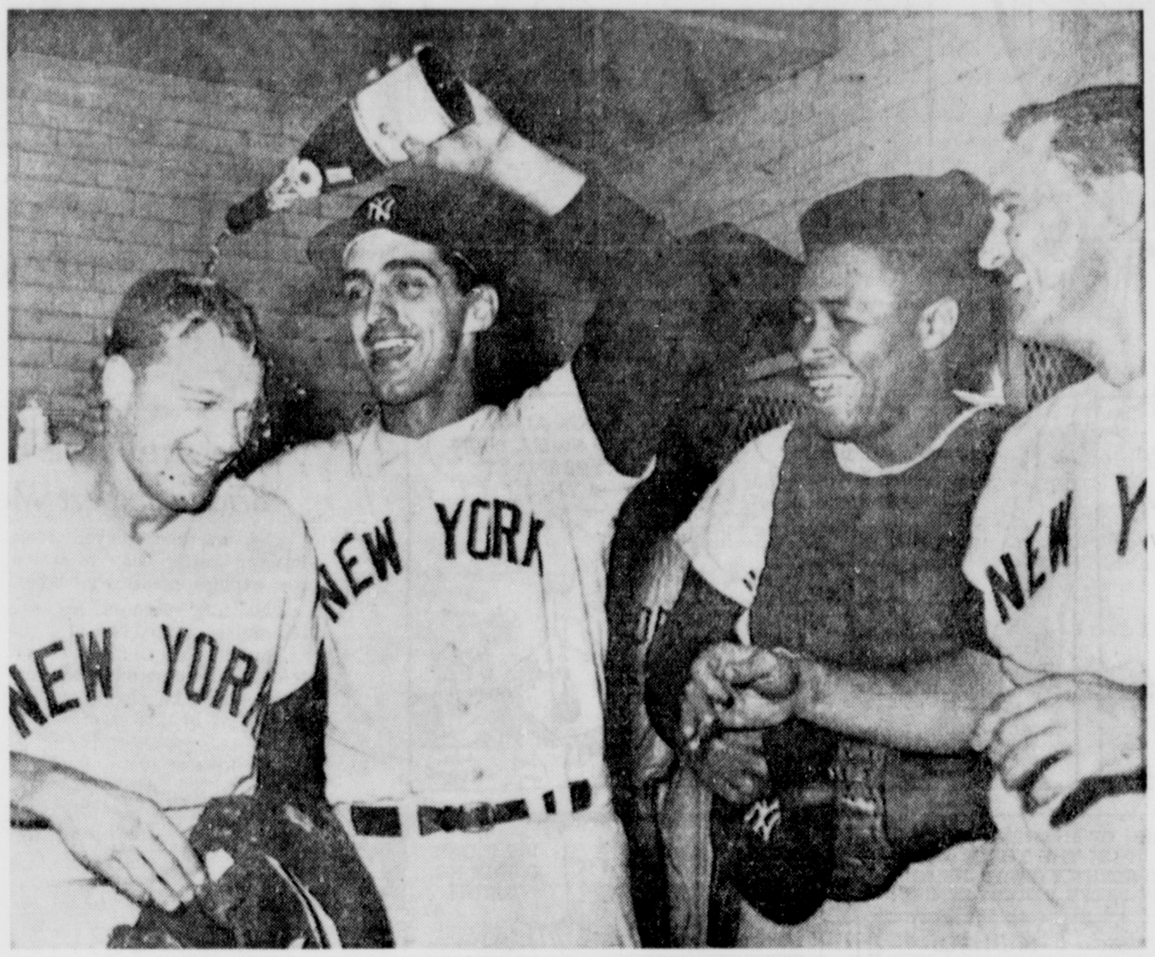
The 49er defense can stand up fairly well with most teams only if it is not overworked. To accomplish this the offense has to keep the ball much longer than it has during the exhibition season. A little razzle-dazzle would at least give the die-hard fans a chance to get excited now and then.

The schedule offers no breaks for the Hickeymen. Besides the usual two games with each of the Western Conference teams, the two inter-conference games this year pit the Niners against the New York Giants and the Cowboys, two clubs that figure to make a run for the title.

SINCE I don't have to suit up and play with or against the 49ers, I can fearlessly offer my predictions for the 1963 season:

Western Conference: The Green Bay Packers again, followed by the Detroit Lions, Chicago Bears, Baltimore Colts, Vikings, L. A. Rams and none other than our 49ers.

Eastern Conference: A long-shot pick for tops, the Pittsburgh Steelers, followed by the Giants, St. Louis Cards, Cleveland Browns, Philadelphia Eagles, and the Washington Redskins.



YANKEES CELEBRATE ANOTHER PENNANT

Stars of the New York Yankees whooped through the traditional champagne-over-the-head horseplay last night after clinching the American League pennant. Jim Bouton, who pitched his 20th victory, 2-0 over Minnesota, got the dousing at left with Joe Pepitone doing the pouring. Watching are catcher Elston Howard and John Blanchard (right). Vikes Favored Over 49ers

The San Francisco 49ers, battered, bruised and beaten unmercifully during the exhibition season, open the 1963 National Football League campaign tomorrow against the favored Minnesota Vikings at Kezar Stadium.

But even after two months of intensive training, Coach Red Hickey doesn't know who will start at quarterback for his club.

The No. 1 claimant of the job, John Brodie, has such a bad right arm that he hasn't been able to throw in practice all week.

The No. 2 man, Bob (Muddy) Waters, has been so ineffective in exhibition games that Hickey is hesitant to start him.

And the No. 3 man, old Sam Etcheverry, has been around such a short time he doesn't know the plays yet.

The Vikings are 2½ point favorites, according to the Las Vegas bookies, mainly because they trounced the 49ers in an exhibition game, 43-28.

A crowd of about 38,000 is expected for the battle in Kezar Stadium. It would be the smallest opening-season attendance since the 49ers joined the national league.

The fact that the club had a 0-5 exhibition season record accounts for the probable drop in attendance.

The team has been beset with injuries since opening day of practice. Currently there are four men on the injured waiver list, in addition to several on the squad who are traveling at half speed.

"I won't know until warm-up time before the game who we will be able to start at quarterback," says Hickey.

Coach Norm Van Brocklin of the Vikings is having no such trouble. Fran Tarkenton is set to start. He led the club to a surprising 4-1 record in the exhibitions.

"But forget those exhibitions," says Van Brocklin. "We are 0 for 0 as far as league games are concerned. The 49ers have been stung and they will be coming after us like a wounded animal."

In addition to the man who does the quarterbacking, the 49ers will have in the backfield Lloyd Winston, second-year man from USC, at the right half; and the reliable J. D. Smith at fullback.

The flanker back is Bernie Casey, the pass-catching whiz from Bowling Green. The other pass catchers will include Jim Johnson, Monty Stickles and Gary Knafelc at the ends. Rookie Don Lisbon from Bowling Green may alternate with Winston at right half.

Another rookie expected to see much action is Kermit Alexander, the No. 1 draft choice from UCLA. He'll be used mostly on defense in the secondary and possibly on receiving kick-offs or punts, where he would team with Abe Woodson.

The Vikings come into the game at full strength. In the backfield with Tarkenton will be halfbacks Tommy Mason and Ray Poage and fullback Bill Brown.

Rejuvenated Raiders Shoot For Second League Victory

Oakland's upstart Raiders bid for their second consecutive American Football League victory tomorrow against Buffalo—a team they barely lost to twice last season.

Near-misses were highlights of the 1962 Raider season but that's not the case this year as new head coach Al Davis has his team—after one game—at the previously-unscaled height of first place in the AFL's western division.

Two of the Raiders' 13 losses last year were administered by Buffalo, 14-10 and 14-6.

After rolling up a 3-2 exhibition record, the Raiders whipped Houston 23-14 in the 1963 AFL opener at Houston last Saturday. With such impetus, a crowd of more than 15,000 is expected at Frank Youell Field, Oakland, tomorrow.

Buffalo lost its opener at San Diego 14-10, but played most of the game without all-AFL fullback Cookie Gilchrist, who injured an ankle and isn't expected to be at full speed this week. Ex-San Diego quarterback Jack Kemp leads the Buffalo attack.

Oakland won in Houston despite a poor 13-for-46 passing average. End Art Powell, however, snagged seven throws for 181 yards and one touchdown.

Davis is again expected to alternate quarterbacks Cotton Davidson and Tom Flores. Flores sparked a second-half rally that put the Raiders in front.

Oakland did lose its injury-free record in the Oiler game as offensive guard Sonny Bishop stretched a knee ligament and will miss the Buffalo clash.

He will be the first Raider of the year to miss an entire game because of injury. Line coach Ollie Spencer will take Bishop's starting role and tight end Bob Mischak, a former guard, will drill at the spot for insurance.

Hub Merchants Play Tomorrow

The San Anselmo Merchants will take on the baseballers from Curley-Lord Tires in San Francisco tomorrow at Memorial Park in San Anselmo. Game time is 2 p.m.

S.A. manager Pete Maggi has selected Nino Geminiani to start on the mound for the Merchants. Bill McGee will be his battery mate.

Giants Face Loss Of Series Loot

PITTSBURGH (AP)—First the dying National League defending champions San Francisco Giants take a mopping by the lowly New York Mets. Then, a Pittsburgh player wiped them out almost single-handedly.

After losing two of three in their Mets series in New York, the Giants opened at Pittsburgh last night.

Left fielder Willie Stargell added to their woes:

Stargel slapped a triple into the left field corner with one out in the 13th inning to score Dick Scofield from first, stopping the Giants, 5-4.

He had wiped out a 3-0 Giant lead in the third by crashing a three-run homer into the upper right field seats after two were out.

The contest meant nothing to the Pirates, who are 8th in the league standings, 19½ games back of Los Angeles; but it put San Francisco a notch closer to being cut out of a share of World Series money.

The Giants had jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first inning, Jesus Alou singling with one out, taking third on Orlando Cepeda's single to right, and scoring on Willie Mays' sacrifice fly.

The edge increased to 3-0 the following inning when pitcher Bob Bolin hit his first major league home run into the right field seats with shortstop Jose Pagan scoring ahead of him.

Then came Stargel's blast in the third to square it at 3-3.

The Bucs went ahead in the fifth after Stargel walked with one away, reached second on Bob Clement's single, and scored on Donn Clendenon's line single past first.

NEAR WINNER

Joe Gibbon, who'd held San Francisco to seven hits through the first eight innings, was only one out from winning his seventh game of the year when he issued walks to Jim Coker and Harvey Kuenn in the ninth.

Pirate manager Denny Murtaugh pulled him for lefty Harvey Haddix, and Haddix was chipped for a single by Jesus Alou which scored pinch-runner Ernie Bowman from second, and sent the game into overtime.

Young Giant righthander Bob Garibaldi, who'd spent nearly the entire season with the Tacoma farm team, was charged with his first loss of the season. Righthander Bob Friend, who retired every Giant he faced during the one inning he worked, recorded his 17th win against 15 losses.

JOHNNY 'BOC' HERO IN CUB VICTORY

John Boccabella's rookie season in the major leagues reached a new high yesterday when he personally led the Chicago Cubs to a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds at Chicago.

The first baseman from San Anselmo slashed an eighth inning single off the slants of veteran Joe Nuxhall to score Ron Santo from second base with the winning run. It snapped Chicago's six game losing streak.

Boccabella, the former Marin Catholic High and Santa Clara ace, also had a double in three times at bat. He was called up from the minor leagues on Labor Day and has been used regularly.

Kids Teams Prepare For Loop Opener

All six teams in the Marin Pop Warner Football League will see practice game action this weekend in preparation for the league openers on Sept. 28.

Tonight at 6 o'clock the Mill Valley Junior Indians and Terra Linda Junior Trojans will battle on the San Rafael High School field. That game will be followed at 8 p.m. by a contest between the Redwood Junior Giants and the San Anselmo Junior Pirates, also on the S.R. field.

Tomorrow at 2 p.m. the San Rafael Junior Bulldogs and Novato Junior Hornets will clash on the Novato High School field.

The teams opened the season last Saturday night with the 10th annual Pop Warner Football Festival. In a trio of games, Mill Valley downed San Anselmo 7-6, Redwood clobbered S.R. 31-6 and Terra Linda and Novato played to a scoreless tie.

REDWOOD '11' ROUTED BY BELLARMINE

Outplayed and outmatched by a powerful team, the Redwood High Giants were bombed 39-6 by Bellarmine High School last night in the season's opener for both teams at Buck Shaw Stadium in Santa Clara.

"It was no indication of what is to come this year," said Redwood coach Bob Troppmann. "The Giants will rise again."

Redwood's only score came in the first quarter, and it was a beaut! Dave Cox grabbed a punt on his own 10-yard line, followed some good blocks to the sidelines and then turned on the speed to race all the way for a 90-yard touchdown gallop.

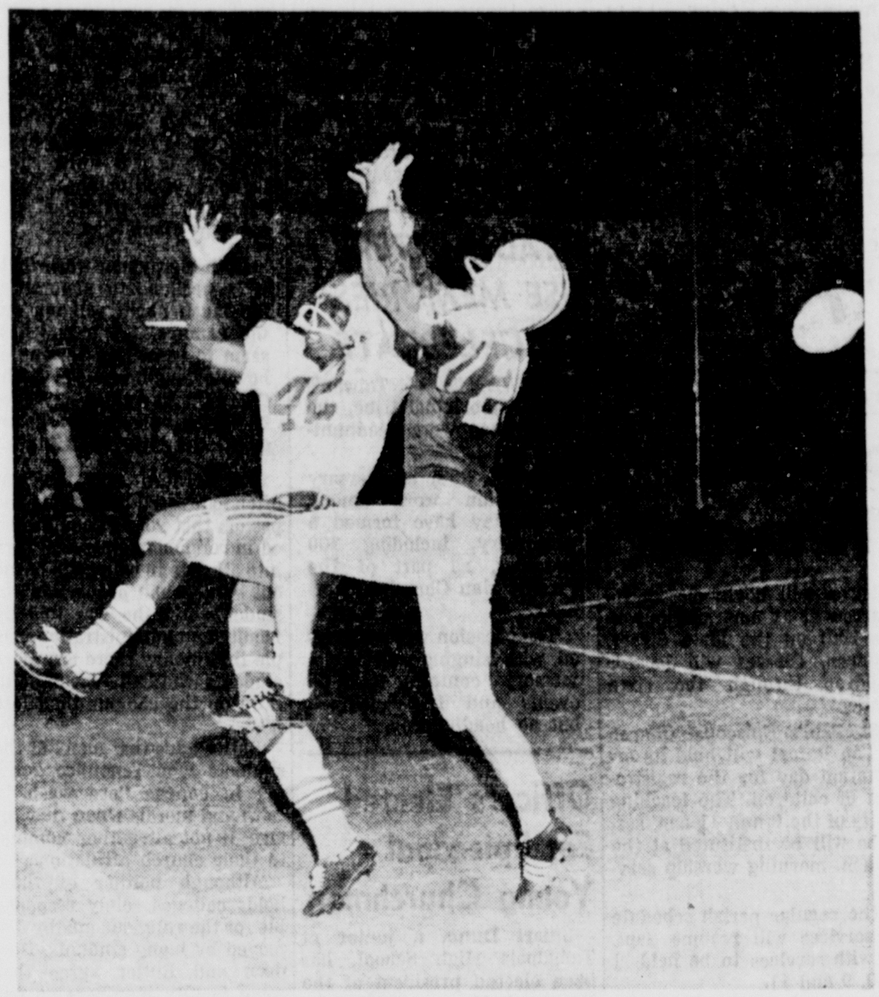
Cox' touchdown tied the score at 6-6, but from there the game took on a different complexion. Bellarmine, favored to win the title in the tough Catholic League, scored another TD in the second period, another in the third, and three more in the final quarter.

CLEAR BENCHES

Both coaches cleared their benches in the final eight minutes of the game which proved one thing — that Bellarmine had more depth than Redwood, scoring two touchdowns in the last two minutes of the game. Most of the game was played on Redwood's side of the field as the Giants were not able to penetrate the huge Bellarmine line for any appreciable yardage.

Although outclassed, the Giants had some bright spots, said Troppmann. He praised the linebacking of Joel Wallace, Dennis Schunk and Steve Minutoli, and the running of fullback Paul Ackerman and halfback Dave Auerbach. He was also pleased with the quarterbacking of Tom Gootherts, playing his first varsity game.

On left is Drake Pirate quarterback Mike Kemp (2) who had given the ball to Lazzarini before being knocked down. (Independent-Journal photos by Harold Mathias)



INCOMPLETE PASS—Drake's Mike Crabtree (29), a flanker back, and Armijo's Jim Jacobs (42) both go in the air trying to grab a pass thrown by Drake quarterback Mike Kemp during the second quarter of last night's battle. Neither could grab the ball which was thrown a little too high.

Kemp Stars As Pirates Smash Armijo By 25-14

By MAURICE WEINGER

Mike Kemp led the offensive-minded Drake High School Pirates to a hard earned 25-14 victory over Armijo last night at Kentfield.

Kemp's quarterbacking was highlighted by three touchdown passes to his fine receiver, Larry Stein, one of them traveling for 64 yards. The little signal caller mixed his plays sufficently enough to gain a total of 365 yards.

Coach Bob Franceschini's Pirates also presented two fine halfbacks in Dean Lazzarini and Dave Cericola. Lazzarini, a sophomore with a bright grid future, led the ground gainers with 76 yards on 12 carries. Cericola, who played last year on the junior varsity as a defensive back, scored Drake's first touchdown on a 29-yard run over left guard by jumping over one defender and running through another.

Armijo went ahead with the next two touchdowns on two long runs that were the only two lapses for the Pirate defense, but the offense came to within one point at halftime 13-14 when Stein caught his first of three scores for seven yards.

In the second half it was all Drake as the visitors could not sustain any drive. On the second series of downs, Kemp again hit Stein on a sideline pass and the agile end sidestepthree Armijo boys and went the 64 yards.

The go ahead touchdown was set up by the defensive unit. Cericola on a previous drive fumbled on Armijo's seven yard line when he was upended on a hard tackle. The visitors moved the ball fast on two runs to the Pirate 47, but Frank Onorato recovered a fumble on the 35 that was to lead to the victory.

SCORING DRIVE

The icing was placed on the win early in the fourth quarter with Kemp completing passes to Mike Crabtree for 11 and Stein for the last nine.

The last scoring drive started on Drake's 38. Kemp, who is not afraid to run when his receivers are covered, broke for 12 and a defensive fouling penalty added another 15 for a first down on the 35. Lazzarini and Cericola mixed up runs to the 20 where Kemp again connected on two straight passes for the score.

During the last half the visitors could only muster two first downs and Kent Chubb, a middle linebacker, was one of the main reasons Armijo could only net 74 yards in the last two quarters. Chubb was all over the field tackling and on one play he blocked a punt that almost scored another Drake touchdown.

The Drake JVs also won their game by a narrow 7-6 margin. Quarterback Bill Ingram scored the TD and Mike Miller the all important extra point on a run.

Tam Bows In Fierce Tilt, 20-0

Tamalpais High School's gridders found they had come up against a brick wall last night in their opening game of the 1963 season and fell to Pacifica High 20-0 in Concord in a fierce battle that was marred by too many personal foul penalties.

The game was further marred when Barney Smith, Tam starting end, suffered a spinal injury and was taken to an emergency hospital in Concord. He was later transferred to Marin General Hospital where he was resting today. His condition today was described as "good."

"It was the biggest Pacifica team I've seen in four years," said Tam coach Pete Belden. He said the team was a lot larger than the Pacifica team that Tam fought to a 7-7 deadlock last year.

No blocking was given by Belden as the major reason for the lack of scoring by the Indians. Tam was in its own territory for most of the game and only twice pushed the ball to the Pacifica side of the field.

LINE OUTMANNED

The Tam line was outmanned by the larger Pacifica eleven. Belden was pleased with the passing of No. 2 quarterback Will Stubblebine who looked better under pressure than he has in practice. Starting quarterback Robin Prosch got off a few good passes but didn't have enough needed protection during most of the game.

Belden felt the single wing part of his multiple offense worked just as well as the T-formation, but sadly added, "Neither will work without blocking."

Pacifica scored twice in the second quarter and added its third TD in the third stanza. Because of so many roughness penalties the officials at one time threatened to halt the game.

ARCATA, 24 TO OH

Bulldogs Blanked In Season Debut

By RALPH CHATOIAN

San Rafael High School's football team got off to a rough start in the 1963 season, taking it on the chin, 24-0, at the hands of Arcata High last night on the S.R. field.

While the Bulldogs from San Rafael couldn't keep up sustained drives on their home field, the gridders from Arcata scored two touchdowns in the opening quarter and two more in the final stanza to the displeasure of a crowd of about 900 fans.

With slightly more than three minutes gone in the opening period, Arcata pushed the ball close to the San Rafael end zone where Kern Heinrici, a halfback, cracked over right tackle from the two. Seven minutes later Arcata added six more points on a pretty 32-yard scamper by fullback Everett Givens.

Trailing 12-0, San Rafael made its most serious threat late in the second quarter. Moving the ball from its own 43 yard line, San Rafael found itself in scoring position with the ball resting on the eight-yard line. It was moved there on a series of passes from quarterback Wade Roberts, the final one to Rich Ahern on a tackle eligible play.

After a pass was off the fingertips of speedster Bob Olsen in the end zone, San Rafael tried to score again from the eight on a pass from Roberts to end Steve Jensen which was complete in the end zone. But a whistle called the TD off, a San Rafael lineman was off sides. Next pass attempt was intercepted.

It was a night of experiments for San Rafael head coach Bob Muster who used all three of his quarterbacks trying to find a touchdown. Wade Roberts, the No. 1 quarterback, performed most of the game, but was relieved by Jim Schmidt, a left-handed passer, at the start of the fourth quarter.

Schmidt, also not having the scoring luck, stepped down for junior Ken Lampert. The first pass thrown by Lampert was intercepted by Arcata's Roger Buck, one of four interceptions by Arcata in the game, and the first of three in the final quarter.

Lampert had two of his passes intercepted, Schmidt one and Roberts one. But San Rafael, trailing by 12 points during the first three quarters, had to go to the air hoping to score the equalizers.

Arcata's fourth quarter touchdowns were scored by Warren Simas on a quarterback sneak from the two and Damon Dickinson on a 13-yard run through the left side of the San Rafael line.

Scoring:

Arcata	12	0	0	12	24
San Rafael	0	0	0	0	0

Touchdowns: Kern Heinrici over right tackle from two; Everett Givens 32-yard run; Warren Simas quarterback sneak from two; Damon Dickinson, 13-yard run.

U.S. Tennis Stars Lead Venezuela

DENVER (AP) — The United States headed into the doubles matches of the American Zone Davis Cup tennis finals today with a 2-0 lead over Venezuela —one point away from victory.

Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., defeated the Venezuelan ace, Iyo Pimentel, 8-6, 6-4, 6-4, and Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield crushed Orlando Bracamonte 6-2, 6-1, 6-2 in singles matches yesterday.

The same four face each other in the doubles match.

Pimentel, 29-year-old southpaw who has been Venezuelan champion since 1953, withered before the steadier play of Riessen, 21-year-old senior at Northwestern University.

Ralston needed only 47 minutes to defeat Bracamonte. He took a 4-0 lead in the first set, allowing Bracamonte only two points in the first four games. He went ahead 2-0 in the second set without giving Bracamonte a point.

The winners of the zone finals will play England Sept. 26-28 in the inter-zone semi-finals in Bournemouth, England.

Huge Crowd At Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The 1963 Indianapolis 500 auto race drew over a quarter-million spectators who contributed to the record $494,000 drivers' purse.

Candlestick Turns Into Race Track

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The asphalt around Candlestick Park turns from its usual function of parking lot to that of high-speed raceway today and Sunday at the Candlestick Road Races, final event of the Pacific Coast championship series.

More than 250 amateur drivers and cars are expected to compete on the two-mile, 10-turn course that has been laid out.

Eight 20-minute races will be contested today with eight 30-minute events on tap Sunday.

A Ford-powered Genie Mark 8 built by BMC will make its debut, BMC's rear-engined Chevrolet Genie Mark 8, the car that won the 150-mile U.S. Road Racing Championship event at Kent, Wash., in July.

Paul Reinhart will drive the Kent champion and Jack Dalton will be in the Ford-powered Genie.

Builders In Final Practice Contest

The Billings-Hutchison Builders of Marin will play their final practice game tomorrow prior to the opening of the Alameda Winter League when they meet the Gino Benedetti nine from San Francisco at San Rafael's Albert Field at 1:30 p.m.

Left-hander Bob DeRosa of the Builders will oppose former Chicago White Sox hurler Marino Pieretti. The Benedetti hurler's battery mate will be Nini Tornay of the old San Francisco Seals.

Flu Bug Sidelines 4 UOP Halfbacks

STOCKTON (AP) — The flu bug has sidelined temporarily University of the Pacific football players Chris Machado, Cameron Doyel, Al Ford and Smiley Verduzco, all halfbacks. They were given shots and ordered to rest after yesterday's practice.

SOFTBALLERS, SEMI-PROS VIE TOMORROW

Something new will be tried tomorrow in Mill Valley when the M.V. Merchants semi-pro baseball team takes on the Old Mill Tavern softball team on Project 17 field, starting at 1 p.m.

The two teams will battle the first four innings at softball and the last four innings at baseball.

Bill Bowen will pitch both baseball and softball for the Old Mill team and Fred Thurman will throw the baseball action for the Merchants. Manager Bob Selna will hurl for the Merchants in the softball portion of the game.

Santa Clara To Open Grid Slate

SANTA CLARA (AP) — The University of Santa Clara will be the first West Coast College football squad to open the season when it tangles tonight with the Moffett Field Navy Flyers.

The visitors will be the first to represent Moffett since 1959. Santa Clara, which was 2-6 last year, has a line averaging 210 pounds. Little All-America honorable mention Ron Calcagno will lead the Broncos at quarterback.

Coach Pat Malley has 24 lettermen returning from 1962.

Archer Eliminated In National Amateur Golf

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—The smart people in the gallery for the 36-hole title match of the U.S. Amateur golf championship will park themselves at the green today and wait for Deane Beman and Dick Sikes.

That's where the 63rd national championship will be decided between the two young fellows who make a putter their greatest weapon. From tee to green, they are little more than average.

"There isn't a tournament really that isn't decided on the greens," Beman, of Bethesda, Md., said after his 5 and 4 victory in the semi-finals over the California cowpoke, George Archer. "But it's especially true here where the greens are good but very difficult to read. I'd have been nowhere here if I hadn't been putting."

"I don't know how I'll play but I know this," said Sikes, who disposed of former champion Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City, 2 and 1. "If I don't putt better than I did in the afternoon against Charlie, this match won't last long. I was horrible."

Beman, 25, who won this championship in 1960, had 11 one-putt greens yesterday at the 6,896-yard par 36-36-72 Wakonda Club. When it looked like he might be losing his momentum after building a huge early lead, he banged in successive putts of 27, 18 and 17 feet.

Sikes, the NCAA champion from Arkansas who has a fantastic 45-6 record in match play competition the last three years, lost his touch in the afternoon sun. But he beat the veteran Coe, 1949 and 1958 amateur champ, with one magnificent stretch in the morning.

Sikes, who has won the National Public Links championship twice, is well aware his Walker Cup and Americas Cup teammate is a tough opponent.

"This tournament is tougher than the Public Links because you have about eight more real good players in it," he said. Pointing to Beman sitting next to him, he said: "This is one of the eight."

Final Saturday TV Bout Tonight

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Mustachioed Ruben "Hurricane" Carter, a slam-bang style fighter, squares off tonight against Farid Salim at Pittsburgh's Civic Arena.

The bout also will ring down the curtain on the series of nationally televised Saturday night fights. Beginning Sept. 20 the fights will be telecast on Friday nights for the first time since the fall of 1960.

"Do You Know Who You Really Are?" is the topic of a talk to be given Sept. 22 by Lenore D. Hanks at 3 p.m. at the First Church of Christ Scientist, 1618 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael.

The theme of the talk will be on man's discovery of his spiritual identity under God.

Religion In College Is Almost Nil

By LOUIS CASSELS
U.P. International

Some young people lose their faith when they go to college.

The great majority do not experience either kind of religious crisis—apostasy or conversion. They spend their college years in "religious hibernation" and just don't think about God.

The Protestant minister is Rev. William E. Hordern of Garrett Theological Seminary, Evanston, Ill. He visited 10 campuses and interviewed students from six others. His findings are being published jointly by three leading denominational magazines—The Lutheran, The Episcopalian and Presbyterian Life.

The Catholic Priest is Father Richard Butler, O.P., national chaplain of the Newman Apostolate which operates centers for Catholic students at about 200 colleges and universities. His book, "God on the Secular Campus," was published this month by Doubleday.

Both clergymen warn that it is perilous to generalize too much about religion on the campus. Some colleges seem to provide a far more hospitable climate for faith than others. And in any one institution, there will be a great diversity of attitudes.

Dr. Hordern says the fear often expressed by parents and pastors that young people reared in religious homes will turn into atheists in college is borne out by a "small proportion" of students. But he was told by faculty and administration people that "today there are more students who find a meaningful faith on the campus than lose it".

Butler adds that many of the students who renounce religion in college "are weak in faith and morals when they arrive, if not altogether nominal in their church affiliations."

Although neither of them holds colleges solely responsible for the religious apathy displayed by many students, Hordern and Butler agree that some faculty members go out of their way to shake whatever faith they may encounter in the young people who attend their classes.

Faculty hostility toward religion, Hordern says, "sometimes takes the form of an open attack upon specific religious beliefs, but more frequently it takes the form of a rather snide disparagement of religion." Professorial sneers at religion are heard in denominational colleges as well as in secular institutions.

Butler says that state universities and other tax-supported institutions cannot properly be asked to inculcate religious faith, but they do have an obligation to be genuinely neutral. And often they are not.

Instead, they engage in "positive indoctrination" of students in the dogmas of secular humanism, which holds "that man himself is the ultimate value in life and he is confined to a material universe which produces him and eventually destroys him."

"There is a tragic irony in the present situation when secular educators are warned not to inject religious beliefs or opinions into their teaching and yet are free to propose and propagate an irreligious view of life," says Butler.

He adds that "more intelligent" students who have had a good background of religious education before coming to college may see through the professor who tries to peddle his own philosophical opinions along with his course in literature or history.

But the average undergraduate is vulnerable to "brainwashing" by teachers who either have a personal antagonism toward religion, or who "delight in the destruction of traditional ideas and values."

College administrators can relieve the problem, Butler says, in two ways:

1. By "cooperating with the churches in providing for religious education."

2. By making it plain to faculty members that "academic freedom" doesn't give them the right to foist their own religious beliefs on their students, even if those beliefs happen to be largely negative.

It is up to the churches, the Catholic priest says, to "assume the principal responsibility to teach their particular doctrines" to college students, through well-located and well-staffed campus religious centers.

Although major denominations have been slowly awakening to this responsibility, Butler notes that there is still "only one priest (usually part-time) to every 3,227 Catholic students" in secular colleges, and "adequate" Catholic centers have been provided for only one-sixth of the campuses where they are needed.

'NO ROOT BEER'
Dedicated Woman Misses Comforts

By BOB HARING

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Being a missionary in Africa requires a lot of sacrifices—such as giving up root beer.

"There's just nowhere to go for root beer in Africa," says Virginia Patterson, 32, a missionary to Nigeria.

On home leave, she said she misses being able to get up and go out in Africa "when I feel like a root beer" more than she misses modern plumbing, electricity and appliances common in the United States.

But Miss Patterson is a dedicated missionary, firmly convinced of the need of teaching Christianity throughout Africa.

She also is a busy student. Since she was graduated from the University of Tulsa in 1953, she earned master's degrees in Bible study from a South Carolina college and in elementary education from Oklahoma State University.

She has spent four years in Nigeria, where she is a seventh grade teacher at the Suden interior mission school.

She has her own home, built by Africans of mud bricks.

In the area where she works there is one church to every 10,000 people, compared to 84 Baptist churches serving Tulsa.

"Here in Tulsa you see a church on every corner, each with a pastor, assistant pastor, education director, minister of music, etc.," she says. "These men could be in the mission field.

"People just aren't interested in religious things. They only care about material things—their beautiful church buildings.

"The Africans walk for miles to come to church in mud huts. They sit on cement benches."

Miss Patterson, sponsored by a Tulsa Baptist church, now is assigned to teach children of missionary parents. This is a vital task, she feels.

"The children of missionaries deserve the very best attention," she says. "They sacrifice as much for the Lord as do their parents."

MARION, Ohio (AP) — Salem United Church of Christ long has been affectionately nicknamed "The Rooster Church."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Temper Tantrums Normal In Young, Parents Usually Can Safely Ignore

VAN DELLEN

Temper tantrums are common in normal pre-school children and, in most instances, can be ignored safely. They stem from frustration, sibling jealously, or lack of ability to adapt to the situation at hand. These eruptions disappear when the child's personality matures.

The scene is familiar: A red-faced, screaming, kicking, or head-banging tyke performing—all too often—in public. Possibly he wants something "right now" and goes into a tantrum when mother says "No" or pulls him away from the desired object.

THESE OUTBURSTS will recur so long as the young man remains intolerant to frustration. And this may continue for some time because boys and girls are faced with many frustrating experiences in the process of growing up. The sooner they learn that living with others is a matter of give and take, the sooner the pattern will change.

The trick is to detect the stimuli that trigger the tantrum. This may take time if the reasons are subtle. A boy who is jealous of his baby brother may have a bout only when embarrassed or frustrated about a situation dealing with the younger child. Others get mad because they cannot perform or get the same results as their older brothers. This conflict is aggravated when mother or father makes inadvertent comparisons between the lads. This should be avoided.

OUTSIDE HELP may be needed if the parents are too confused to see the picture clearly. In some instances, they nag too much, insisting upon standards of behavior or discipline that fit one set of circumstances but not others. They are not consistent and will give in to prevent a scene in front of others but not when alone.

Still other parents do not understand the child's personality. Some boys and girls overreact to the normal frustrations of life, even though otherwise normal. Others are placid and raise cain only when a big problem cannot be solved. Now and then tantrums indicate serious psychological disturbances.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

BALDNESS PATTERN

A. T. writes: What is meant by male pattern baldness?

REPLY

This is the common type of baldness that plagues many men. Some develop a bald spot on top of the head; others have a receding hairline on the forehead, a very wide part on the scalp, or a fringe of hair along the sides and neck. This pattern differs from the patchy type of baldness that occurs in alopecia areata or other scalp diseases.

RECURRENCES DECREASE

L. M. writes: Do children outgrow the tendency to develop attacks of rheumatic fever? ....

REPLY

The tendency never is outgrown but recurrences are less likely as the child matures. Approximately 40 per cent experience another bout within one year after the initial attack unless special precautions are taken.

MORNING HEADACHES

J. E. O. writes: Why do I awaken every day with a headache?

REPLY

Sinus disease, arthritis of the neck, and high blood pressure ought to be investigated.

BREECH PRESENTATION

Mrs. A. writes: Does a breach birth harm the baby?

REPLY

No, but it is more difficult and requires greater skill than the more usual head first presentation.

'Bad Boy's' Trial Without Flareups

The jury trial of San Quentin "bad boy" Robert Gene Glover, 32, drew to a close yesterday afternoon, without a single uprising from the hot-tempered convict thus far.

Judge Thomas F. Keating of Marin Superior Court, who has presided over the two-week trial, recessed the case until 9:30 a.m. Tuesday. The lawyers will give their final arguments then, and the case is expected to go to the jury of eight women and four men Tuesday afternoon.

Glover, a life-timer, is accused of stabbing inmate Henry L. Wolfenden, 26, with a brass rod last Feb. 5. If convicted, he could get the death penalty.

Glover, defended by William O. Weissich, testified in his own defense this week, sometimes glowering, sometimes smiling.

His only show of temper thus far has been a couple of barbed comments from the witness stand.

During cross examination by Assistant Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales, Glover glared: "I don't like you," which is a normal reaction of most defendants toward the prosecutor.

On another occasion, Glover proclaimed: "I didn't vote for the judge. He has no jurisdiction over me!"

Glover freely admitted he's been in trouble since he was a teen-ager—car theft, robbery, grand larceny and sex perversion.

"Of the last 15 years, how many years did you spend in prisons?" his lawyer asked. "About 12 or 13," Glover replied.

Concerning the stabbing, Glover admitted he jabbed the brass rod at Wolfenden because he was afraid Wolfenden would attack him. Glover claimed Wolfenden had "lost face" in a previous encounter and was out to get even.

Glover testified he always thought Wolfenden was "sneaky" and "treacherous," and he was apprehensive because he heard through the prison grapevine that somebody was out to kill him. That somebody, he thought, was Wolfenden.

Prosecutor Bales called Wolfenden to the stand, but the victim clammed up completely, refusing to say anything about the stabbing.

This prompted Glover to change his mind about Wolfenden. "I think he's a good guy," Glover observed from the witness stand. "He proved that by getting up here and saying he didn't want to say anything about anything."

Prosecutor Bales says Wolfenden refused to talk for a different reason. "He's scared to death of possible retaliation," Bales observed.

Glover has entered a double plea—not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity.

Youth Found Guilty Of Car Theft

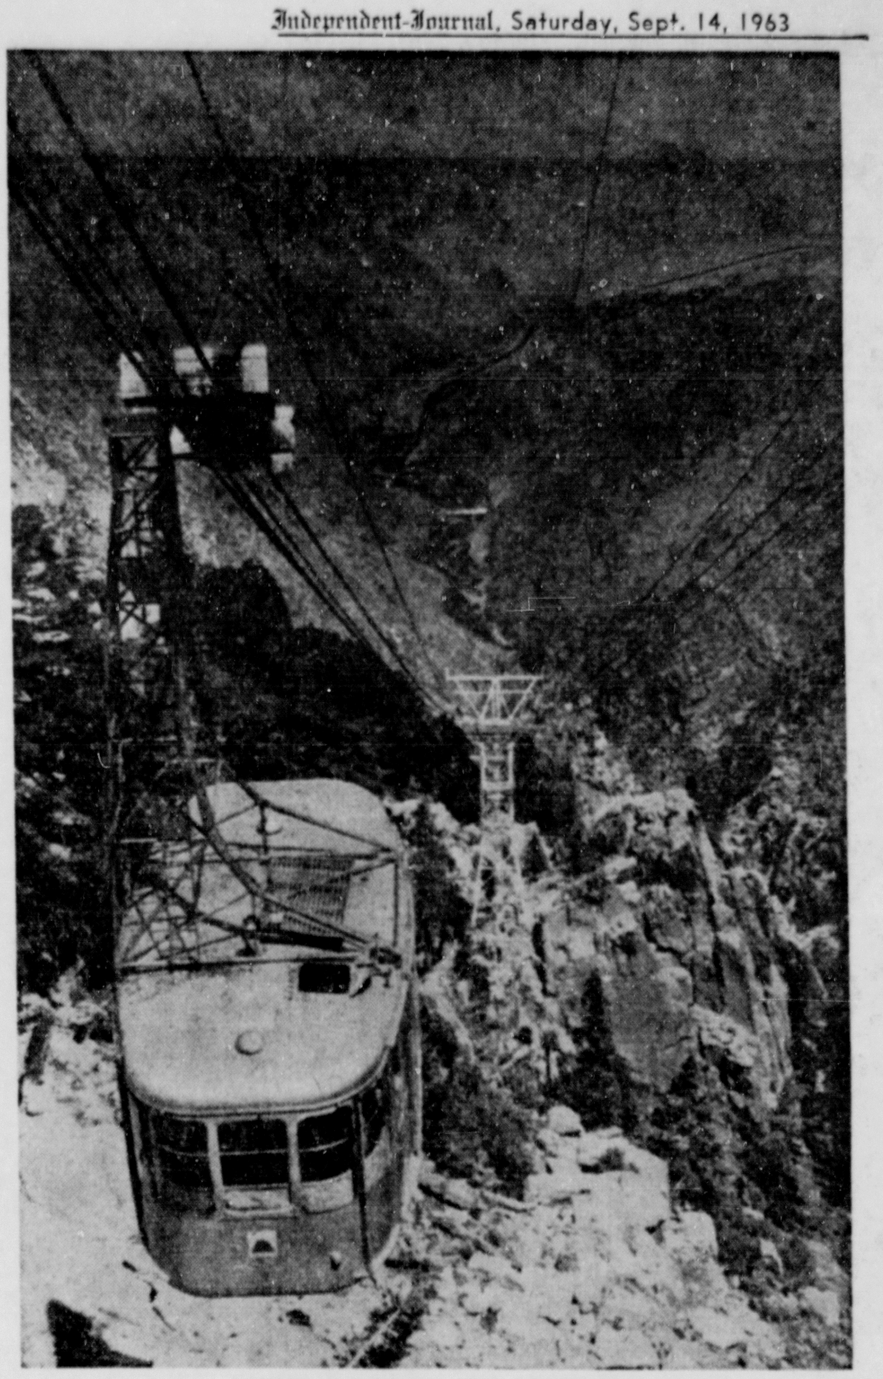
Israel Whittacker, 19, of Woodacre, who led police on a wild auto chase through San Rafael last month, was found guilty yesterday of car theft.

A jury of 10 women and two men deliberated for two hours and returned the guilty verdict before Judge Richard M. Sims Jr. in Marin Superior Court. Judge Sims set 9:15 a.m. Oct. 4 as the time for a probation report and sentencing.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Joshua Thomas, the prosecutor, convinced the jury that Whittacker had stolen a car from San Rafael used car dealer Paul N. Gardner.

Deputy Sheriff Arthur Wiggins spotted the youth run a stop sign in the stolen car on the night of Aug. 9.

Deputy Wiggins said Whittacker raced through San Rafael at speeds up to 80 miles per hour despite two shots fired at the speeding convertible. Whittacker finally stopped when his car struck a tree on Fifth Avenue near D Street.



NEW AERIAL TRAMWAY

The world's longest single-lift aerial tramway has opened up a winter wonderland as an addition to the sun and desert attractions to the Palm Springs area. The two and one-half mile line up lofty Mount San Jacinto took two years to construct at a cost of eight million dollars. On a normal summer day there is a temperature difference of about 50 degrees between the desert floor and the top of the mountain. (UPI photo)

NWP Backing Incorporation Of Tiburon

A letter from the Northwestern Pacific Railroad endorsing the incorporation of Tiburon and agreeing to include the railroad property was read at yesterday's meeting of the Tiburon Peninsula Chamber of Commerce by Fred Mantegani.

The letter stated that the endorsement came because of the support for incorporation by local leaders "including the supervisor from Mill Valley."

Stuart Burt resigned as secretary-manager. Burt, who handles general and life insurance, is merging his office with that of Verne Hockett and will move to Mill Valley. Burt said he is moving in order to broaden his service.

Homes Fill Flatlands North Of San Rafael

The flatland is being filled with rows of houses, subdivisions and stores and only the highest hills remain with their natural cover of trees and shrubs north of San Rafael.

Highway 101 cuts diagonally across the center of this view, from upper right near the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge, to the lower left. Below the highway is the Terra Linda High School and its rectangular athletic field.

To the left of the high school is the Terra Linda Valley Hospital and Emmanuel Freitas Parkway, running vertically from the highway. The whorls in the dust in the angle formed by the parkway and the highway surround the Emporium building now being constructed near the Northgate shopping center.

Mount Tamalpais Cemetery is just above the construction site. On the far side of the highway, the unusual shape of the Frank Lloyd Wright-designed Civic Center stands out from the hills, with its adjacent round post office and lagoon.

San Rafael Cayes sticks out into the water just to the left of the bridge and on the far side of Puerto Suello hill. The Marin Islands are bumps in the bay just beyond the Marin Bay project, also being developed into the bay.

Point San Pedro, a natural outthrust into the bay, and its China Camp, are further left.

A ROOMY DOLLHOUSE is what you need if you are a doll collector like Claudia Robinson of 26 Inverness Drive, San Rafael. Her father, Gen. Donald Robinson, built this two-story home after Claudia acquired some intricate German furniture and dolls. The house will be on display at the St. Paul's Art and Hobby Show Thursday night and Friday. (Independent-Journal photos)

Her Doll House Was A Project

Claudia's Father Built 2 Story House For 'Family'

Doll houses are a delight to any little girl, but for San Rafael's Claudia Robinson, 15, who has become an authority on dolls, the dollhouse was a family project.

Her father Donald B. Robinson, a retired Army general, built the two story house out of ash wood plywood. It is 55 inches long, 24 inches wide and 24 inches high.

It has a staircase, two bedrooms, a bath, hallway, living room, dining room and kitchen. And it is furnished with intricate chairs and tables and side pieces made in Germany in the early 1900s.

THE HOME is populated by small dolls, also made in Germany. There is a father and mother, a baby, nursemaid and kitchen maid. The kitchen maid wears the keys to the household on a chain around her waist. It is a rather old fashioned household.

There are byzantine tile fireplaces in the dining room and living room, and the floors in the kitchen and bathroom are lined with mosaic tile. For door knobs, General Robinson used parts of an old piece of costume jewelry that once belonged to his mother.

Some of the windows are curtained with lace that is more than 75 years old. It also belonged to his mother.

THE DOLLHOUSE will be one of the big attractions at the Art and Hobby Show to be held at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael Friday. The show, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. includes a buffet luncheon from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and an afternoon tea.

A preview of the show will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. on Thursday at a wine-tasting party.

By coincidence, it was at a bazaar sponsored by the church's St. Anne's Guild some time ago that the Robinson's acquired the doll furniture and figures.

Mrs. Robert L. Reenstjerna of 151 Tamal Vista Drive, San Rafael, who had owned the furniture since childhood, donated it to the bazaar.

WHY DID the dollhouse become such a big project? One look at Claudia's room in the Robinson home at 26 Inverness Drive explains it all.

At last estimate there were more than 500 dolls in her collection. She does not play with them anymore, but the collection that began when she was just a toddler, has grown into an absorbing hobby.

She has dolls from many countries and several prize possessions such as replicas of the music room and boudoir of Marie Antoinette. Each year the Robinsons have given Claudia a Hummel doll at Christmas. But this is only one source.

In a trip to Europe two years ago, Claudia spent many happy hours in doll shops, adding to her collection. She has one doll purchased at the famous Flea Market in Paris.

SERVICING COMPONENTS. In a previous article I discussed the types of tests and some of the test instruments used to check and adjust amplifier-preamplifier units.

To check a Tuner, three basic test instruments are generally used. The most important instrument is the Sweep Signal Generator. This generator provides FM signals of any desired frequency and intensity. Briefly, the generator provides the service technician ith an FM station which he can control. The second important instrument is the Oscilloscope. This instrument was described in a previous article and is a visual display instrument with a small face like a TV screen. The third instrument is a Vacuum Tube Voltmeter. The VTVM, as it is called, is a highly sensitive voltmeter that does not upset the circuit to which it is attached. I might state at this point, that an inexperienced radio technician can do more harm than good because of errors caused by improper instrumentation. For instance, if the correct probes or connecting cables, are not used when making an alignment the wave shape during alignment will reach its correct shape; however, when the probes are removed, the wave shape will become distorted and the user has a badly aligned set.

To align or check an FM Tuner for alignment, the Sweep Signal Generator is first connected to a point feeding the IF stages. These are the tuned amplifiers that follow the dial tuning section of your receiver. The Oscilloscope is connected to a point at the end of the IF amplifier. With the correct frequency applied by the generator, the wave shape is viewed on the scope. This wave shape has a very critical form and if it deviates from the correct shape you will have FM distortion. By going back and forth over many adjustments, usually 6 to 8, the wave shape is adjusted. Then the Scope probe is moved to a point further along in the circuit and a different and even more critical wave shape is observed and adjusted. This wave shape is called the discriminator curve. The VTVM is often used in the above alignment in conjunctionwit the Scope to obtain even more precise adjustments.

Next, the tuning section is checked and aligned, for overall receiver performance. Multiplex stereo ment will be discussed in another article.

Our Service Department specializes in components, and it is equipped with the necessary test instruments to insure that your components are operating in accordance with specifications.

Vinegar For Marin Gourmets

Belvedere Women Make It By The Gallons For Grape Festival

Making gourmet vinegars takes not only a lot of time but also enormous care and patience every step of the way.

For this you can take the word of a group of Belvedere women who go through the process every year. They are members of Belvedere Sunny Hills Guild 4, and their seasoned vinegars are featured annually at the Grape Festival, scheduled this year for Oct. 5.

The story of the guild's fine vinegars goes back to 1949, when Mrs. Frederic Tredway began experimenting to find the best blend of wine vinegars and herbs. She hade two gallons at first, and production was up tenfold by the time she turned over the formula to other members of the guild in 1959.

Now 30 to 40 gallons are sold annually.

Guild members grow tarragon, marjoram, oregano, thyme and rosemary in their own gardens especially for their vinegar products. Mrs. W. C. Saville, although not a member, also grows tarragon for the guild to use.

Not only must the herbs be fresh but they must be picked "at the peak of perfection," according to Mrs. W. R. Davis, now in charge of production.

"WE FOLLOW Mrs. Tredway's methods," says Mrs. Davis. "The herbs mature in late summer and should be picked after a few days of very warm weather, at midday, when the sun is on them. The warmth sends the oils up into the leaves, and the flavor is best at that time."

Small bouquets of fresh herbs are gently crushed and then inserted into gallon or half-gallon jugs of wine (donated by Sonoma and Napa County wineries). The herbs must be carefully agitated once a day for about 10 days.

Tasting determines the exact time for decanting. Sometimes more herbs must be added to obtain the desired flavor.

TRADITIONALLY, all members of the guild take part in the decanting or vinegar "pour." Working in assembly line fashion, they carefully strain, measure and pour the finished vinegars from the jugs into smaller containers to be sold at the Grape Festival on the Sunny Hills grounds in San Anselmo. Each container is then sealed with sealing wax and tied with raffia to hold on its label.

In addition to the unique herb vinegar, the guild also makes tarragon and garlic vinegars. Mrs. MacBoyle Lewis contributes a quantity of mint vinegar.

THE IMPORTANT first step by the women of Belvedere Sunny Hills Guild 4 in the making of gourmet vinegar for their Grape Festival booth is the gathering of fresh herbs. At upper left, Mrs. W. R. Davis cuts tarragon in her garden, making certain the herbs are at their "peak of perfection." Upper right, Mrs. Harley Leete inserts bouquets of fresh herbs into jugs. The bouquets must then be agitateted gently every day for a week or more—until the desired flavor is attained. Lower left, three of the final steps in making herb vinegar are demonstrated by, left to right, Mrs. George Banning and Mrs. Leete, decanting from larger jugs into smaller containers, and Mrs. Davis, sealing the top of one of the bottles. At lower right, bottles of the guild's special vinegars are decorated with raffia and labeled by Mrs. Banning. The 1963 Grape Festival will be held Oct. 5 in San Anselmo, and the Belvedere guild will again be selling herb, garlic, tarragon and mint vinegars. (Independent-Journal photos)

WALL STREET?

Bank In Tiburon Almost Incognito

YES. IT'S A BANK. With plush carpets and walnut paneling, the interior furnishings make the Tiburon National Bank look far different from the conventional picture one has of a bank. But a look at the work being done by Evelyn Pierroz, secretary, and Henry Tomasini, president, would show that it is indeed a banking establishment.

The new Tiburon National Bank at 55 Main Street promises the going rate of interest and a warm, cheerful fireplace for its depositors.

Undoubtedly the most unusual looking bank in Marin County, Tiburon National opened Aug. 30 with a one day total of $1,250,000 in deposits.

Board chairman Charles Tijerina said it was the largest opening day of any bank in the history of Marin. And it may have been the unusual decor of the bank that attracted so many depositors.

MERCHANTS on Tiburon's Main Street have already dubbed the bank the "J. P. Morgan Co.," and indeed it looks something like a Wall Street investment house. It looks also something like a house in New Orleans with its gay awning and gas lamps at the entrance.

The building, near the entrance to the Corinthian Yacht Club, was once the home of a branch of the Bank of Sausalito. This was in 1922. Later it was a branch of the American Trust Co. which has since merged with Wells-Fargo Bank.

Remodeling was under the direction of Robert Liles, a San Francisco architect. Interior design was done by Ron Fidler of Belvedere.

THE UPSTAIRS directors' room looks out over Tiburon harbor and the Corinthian Yacht Club.

The vault door was salvaged from the days of the Bank of Sausalito and done over by Hermann Safe Co. of San Francisco.

CLOCKS GO BOOM

Collectors On Increase While Clocks Grow Rare

By FRANK FARRARA

Hickory-dickory dock there's a boom in antique clocks.

Whether they go bing-bong, tick-tock, boing-boing or ting-tang, or "cuckoo," there is an ample supply of clock collectors to snap them up, often at a nifty price.

Most of the collectors engage in the hobby for fun, but there are some "serious" ones who travel around the world looking for unusual clocks.

"Clock collecting is a fairly big deal," according to Louis Bouteiller of 9 Alder Court, Fairfax, a veteran repairman who has worked on his share of antique clocks.

IN THEIR quest for clocks, many collectors buy "stuff that's shot," thereby providing work for Bouteiller and other clock repairmen in Marin County.

Some persons collect by make, some by looks and others just to have a conversation piece, he said. "One fellow collected just master clocks. He tried to synchronize them all to strike together and he went crazy."

TELLING time is not the clock collector's primary object, Bouteiller said. "They have them all running at different times."

Some collectors are attracted to old clocks by the good craftsmanship, according to E. E. Bell of the Clock Shop in Mill Valley. "Some of the best examples of goldsmith work can be found on old clocks and watches," he said.

There is a scarcity of authentic old clocks because the demand has increased while the number of original clocks has not, Bell said.

Bell is a member of San Francisco chapter of the National Assn. of Watch and Clock Collectors which has about three or four members in Marin County.

SOME CLOCK collectors shun publicity about their hobby either because they fear theft or because they don't want to have people hounding them to sell their clocks.

F. A. Brown of the Rite Time Shop in San Rafael said there is a demand for grandfather clocks which give some "a remembrance of grandmother's house."

He was working on a collector's item, a French clock of 1880 with a brass stand that had been buried during World War I and resurrected. It had a silk string suspension system with the pendulum operating on a silken thread.

Bell, who has 500 books on the history of clocks, summed it up by saying . . . "It's a tremendous game. I've been in it since 1915 and I learn something new every day."

"WHAT DYES STAINED MY COLOR-FAST DRESS?"

You wonder where the dye stain came from when the dress you washed and pressed was color-fast. It is not a fabric color that caused the damage; it is the color from the glass beads that are on your dress. Your steam iron is the culprit. Sometimes the coloring matter which is used to color beads is sensitive to steam. When pressing your dress the steam released the color onto your dress. This bead-bleeding may be difficult, if not impossible, to remove.

So many garments, especially for evening wear, are high-styled with beads or sequins this season that this trouble may become quite common.

Here are a few tips on handling sequin or beaded garments. Remember, they usually are machine-stitched by a continuous thread. Promptly tie up any broken thread to avoid raveling or loss of beads or sequins. If you press your garment at home, place a heavy turkish towel over the ironing board and cushion the beads or sequins against the soft padding.

It is safest to rely on your professional cleaner to clean and press sequin-trimmed or beaded garments. He has the special equipment and knowledge to care for them to your satisfaction.

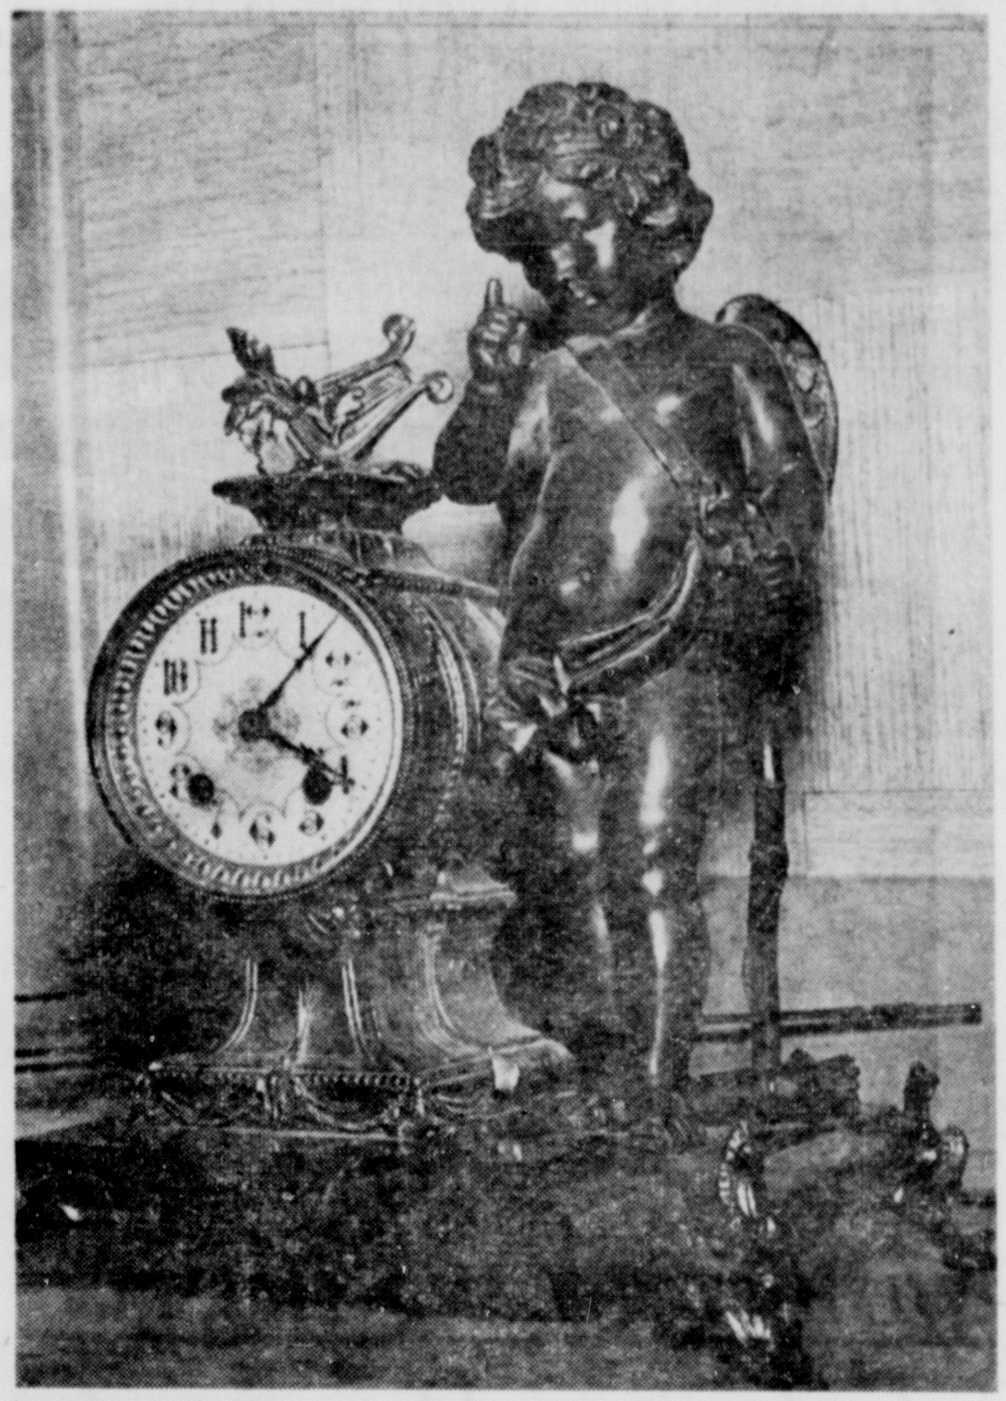
This skeleton clock has a fusee drive. It is one of Bouteiller's prize possessions. (Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)



FRENCH CLOCK with accompanying angel and fine workmanship, standing on Bouteiller's mantel is typical of a type favored by collectors. Many collectors with a house full of old clocks shy away from publicity for fear of inviting thieves or being hounded by other collectors.

COLORFUL Dutch hood clock with moving ships at the top is an example of last century handiwork that brings admiration from clock repairman Louis Bouteiller of Fairfax. He has watched the steady increase in antique clock collecting for many years and reports that old clocks are getting scarce as the number of collectors increase. In fact, many collectors have become publicity shy to avoid being bothered by other collectors. Odd thing is that a man with scores of clocks in his house, might not be able to tell you the exact time of day.

Eskimo Prints On Show In Marin

Some look like monstrous visions from a nightmare, others like ancient cave paintings and others like hangings from a modern museum.

All are alive with action and seem to pulse with the harsh elements of their origin.

They are the prints of present-day Eskimos which will be on view in Marin in a show opening at 8 o'clock tonight and running until Sept. 30 in the Francis Young Gallery at the Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross.

THE PRINTS show keen powers of observation and an ability of the artists to register in their memory the details of all they see. There are bears, seals, fish, geese and favorite of all, the owls. Some renderings are highly imaginative, others highly literal.

Since 1957, the Canadian government has encouraged the Baffin Eskimos, long known for their carving talents, to take up print making. The technique was new to them, but they soon were producing some remarkable prints and stencils.

The prints are made from a block of soap stone in which the design is carved in CAPE DORSET cooperative where the artists gather to work, has reportedly earned $100,000 from sales to art collectors and museums. Several Canadian museums have collections. The prints can also be found at the Museum of Modern Art in New York.

BESIDE PAYMENT to the artists, the money also goes to finance Eskimo hospitals and schools. In addition, one Eskimo with a typical sense of humor, remarked that the creativity "keeps us off the streets at night."

In a land where the street is a trough of snow, nights are 21 hours long and the temperature is sometimes 60 degrees below zero, this is a joke.

THE HARSH elements take a constant toll. All of the Cape Dorset artists are "Sunday" artists. Survival comes first and print making has to be sandwiched in between the daily routine of hunting and providing shelter.

SOMETIMES the artists do not return from the hunt. One of the greatest artists, Niviaksiak, was lost while hunting.

In California the prints have been displayed at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco, the Santa Barbara Art Museum, Mills College, the Art Center in La Jolla, the Crocker Gallery in Sacramento and the Stanford University gallery. The first four named have purchased prints for permanent collection.

MARGARET FOSTINE, chairman for the Marin show, said the opening night program will include a movie, "Living Stone," presented by Miss Laura Beattie, Canadian Consul of the Consulate General's office, San Francisco.

Humorist Treats Old Topics With Laugh Providing Style

By DON KEOWN

Humorous books about harried and bumbling male breadwinners bedeviled by their extravagant and unappreciative families and the problems of society in general are hardly a novelty any more.

You know—the "Give Father a Hard Knock" sort of thing. A kind of "The Egg and I" from the male standpoint.

Robert Fontaine handles it better than most in his "The Buttons Keep Coming Off."

Best known for his humor in such magazines as Esquire, Saturday Evening Post, Reader's Digest, Holiday and Cosmopolitan, Fontaine has used some of that material in his newest book.

He has expanded upon it and added to it. And the end result is a pretty funny and pretty effective commentary upon the foibles of modern-day middleclass suburban life.

Wives, kids, plumbers, television, commercials, surveys, schools, cocktail parties, women's fashions, shabby craftsmanship, expense accounts, home handymen, the holiday season, etc., all come in for a bit of kidding. Safe subjects, to be sure. And all have been so treated many times before.

But Fontaine still succeeds in making most of it fun to read. He labors and sputters a bit on some topics, but on other subjects he takes off in great fashion and soars high.

His first chapter, fortunately, is also one of his best. Thus the reader gets off to a good start, and is in a receptive humor for what is yet to come.

HISTORIAN Theodore H. Hittell's account of how dynamic, persevering Father Juan Ugarte overcame incredible hardships to build his ship, back in the early 1700s, was first published in The Californian of San Francisco in 1880.

Now it has been republished in hardcover booklet format by Roger Levenson's Tamalpais Press of Berkeley under California Historical Society sponsorship.

The booklet itself is rightfully described as "a little gem," a triumph of the publishing art.

The story is a simple one, interestingly and accurately told. Hittell, best known for his "History of California" in four volumes and dead now nearly a half century, has stood the test of time as a major Western historian.

The California Historical Society deserves commendation for lending its prestige to this quality publishing project which once again proves that you can't judge a book by its size.

MILDRED and Gordon Gordon wrote "Undercover Cat" with its movie potential and with actress Hayley Mills especially in mind. That planning has paid off to the tune of $125,000 from the Walt Disney Studios.

If the movie is anywhere near as clever and delightful as the novel, it should be a big moneymaker for Disney.

The Gordons have used the habits of their own cat—a $2 refugee from the humane shelter—as the basis for the book.

This extraordinary cat, as presented by the Gordons, is a most believable and winning character. So are the two-legged members of the cast. And the whole thing makes for some enjoyable and exciting reading.

We recommend it heartily as an exceptional effort in the suspense novel field—a refreshing change of pace that will keep you entertained from start to finish.

We have a hunch you'll share our impatience for D.C. on the movie screen. But Disney and his staff will have to go some if they are to match the ingenuity displayed by the Gordons.

THESE FLYING OBJECTS, once mysteries, have been identified. At top is the reflection of the photographer's diamond ring as caught by the camera. At bottom are "grindstone" clouds over Mount Rainier. Both photos are among the illustrations in "The World of Flying Saucers: A Scientific Examination of a Major Myth of the Space Age" by Donald H. Menzel and Lyle G. Boyd. Doubleday is the publisher and the book sells for $4.50.

Sleuths & Suspense

A MURDER OF QUALITY by John Le Carre, Walker and Co., 190 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

John Le Carre won wide acclaim for his espionage thriller "Call For the Dead" featuring the bland but deadly British agent, George Smiley.

Now he gives us "A Murder of Quality" with Smiley again as the central character.

But this time he has written a straight detective novel or murder mystery instead of a spy thriller. And Smiley, now retired, appears in the less flamboyant role of freelance sleuth.

The wife of a faculty member at an exclusive British school for boys is slain without apparent reason. It falls to Smiley to delve into the backgrounds of the various suspects and, finally, to uncover the identity of the murderer.

The pace is rather deliberate, but that is the way the British seem to like their detective stories. You may prefer them that way, too. Anyway, while "A Murder of Quality" is hardly the standout that "Call For the Dead" was in its different field, it will nevertheless provide satisfactory reading for most mystery fans.

ONE HOUR TO KILL by George Harmon Coxe, Alfred A. Knopf, 182 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

We have never been able to work up a great deal of enthusiasm for the mysteries of George Harmon Coxe, although his books are much admired by many "who-dunit" fans as well as by his detective story-writing colleagues. His books have always struck us as routine formula stuff produced with assembly line speed and precision but with little imagination.

We do, however, find his 50th mystery novel (No. 1 was written back in 1935) a shade fresher and more interesting than most of its predecessors.

"One Hour to Kill" is a tale of murder and blackmail set in Trinidad. Artist Dave Wallace finds himself the prime suspect in the slaying of his unfaithful wife. His own suspicions are directed at the wife's several playboy-type boy friends.

MOLAKAI by O. A. Bushnell, published by World Publishing Co., 539 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Jean Lyttle.

Molakai, the island of exile, is shrouded by great clouds as it is first seen by leprous passengers aboard the steamer. "Aloha" has been said by all the outside world.

Bushnell, a native of Hawaii, has written a spellbinding novel of life in the leper settlement in the late 19th Century.

The story is told through the lives of three main characters. Dr. Newman is a German doctor who goes to the island to experiment with human life in the hope of saving humanity. Malie is a beautiful member of the royal court, who accepts her fate with cool serenity. Caleb is an ambitious lawyer whose career ends as he steams toward the island.

Bushnell, in his probe of this forbidding world, reveals hope, strength and beauty. Writing with compassion and insight, he reveals some triumphant answers to the riddle of death as well as the riddle of life.

THE RICHEST POOR FOLKS by Leland Frederick Cooley, Doubleday, 428 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

You might call this book a "folk tale"—the author calls it "a sort of novel."

Whatever you call it, if you want to sink your roots in California, this book about life in the Upper Sacramento Valley around 1920 will help.

The publisher points out on the dust jacket that the only four-letter word in the book is "love." This seems to be a trend in advertising books when no one can honestly claim literary merit for their publication.

Sex or shock value per se has never been a serious influence in the selection of literature for intelligent readers, and I doubt that the absence of it will bear much weight either.

But there is something more important that I enjoyed about this book. It gives us the opportunity to hear the eyewitness account of the history of our state, although told in an overblown, rather hackneyed style by an "old-timer." This is an enchanting way to get the "feel" of history—a way that's being denied to the youngsters of Marin County as the youth-worshiping planned communities grow and the spice of our society is neglected.

Lee Cooley tells about a rugged salmon-fishing trip, a gold-digging expedition, an experiment with home brew and a wild "shivaree," among other colorful events.

YANKS DON'T CRY by Martin Boyle, Bernard Geis Associates, 249 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

The author, an ex-Marine, recounts the trials, tribulations and minor joys of surviving four years in a Japanese prisoner of war camp with a work that rings true, but not loudly. Boyle hits a new vein with his brief, but revealing comments about the reactions of the Japanese civilians to their country's war effort.

But he skirts this intriguing bypath while concentrating on a realistic, straight-forward account of life as a POW.

The fact that all Japanese were not entranced with the idea of fighting the U. S. seem worthy of more note.

Unfortunately for Boyle, the passage of time and a few score authors have made POW life a fairly well-worn theme. Life as a POW is not without drama, and neither is Boyle's tale, but the story has been too often told.

There are times when the reader feels he is hearing from another veteran telling his war stories at the corner bar.

About the staying power of present-day troops, Boyle has an encouraging word . . . "the young men of today would do just as most of us did when we found ourselves flat on the deck—live by a simple code of 'rights' and 'wrongs' picked up at home in the early days."

Young Readers Have Rich Years Of Adventure Ahead

Crowell-Collier's "Modern Masters for Children" series has been criticized because its name writers have been restricted to vocabularies selected by a panel of three educators. However, it seems to us that authors of the caliber of Arthur Miller, Robert Graves, John Ciardi and Mark Van Doren, even when working under such a restriction, still turn out books that are much superior to most reading fare for children. Now the one and only William Saroyan has joined the list, displaying his characteristic sense of humor and zest for life in his charming "Me." The vocabulary: 222 simple words. Illustrations by Murray Tinkleman are colorful and distinctive. The book ($1.95) is aimed at a somewhat younger audience than many of the Modern Masters series books. Tots 3 to 5 should be delighted.

WILLIAM SAROYAN
In juvenile field

If you have a boy in the upper grades who likes his books packed with action, adventure and sports thrills, "Leatherjackets" by Ben Jordan (Duell, Sloan and Pearce, $3.50) should be right up his alley. It is a lively story of motorcycle racing and of how young Al Turner learned that a lust for speed could be overdone.

"Eager Beaver" by Inez Hogan (E. P. Dutton, $2.25) is a simple little story by that prolific writer about two forest friends—a beaver and a squirrel—and how they help each other in the solution of their problems. Mrs. Hogan has also provided simple black and white drawings, and the text is set in extra large type for the benefit of the beginning reader. It is aimed at the 4 to 7-year-olds.

"Book of Favorite Hymns" by Marguerite de Angeli (Doubleday) is something special. Miss De Angeli has collected 50 hymns that are her own favorites or favorites of her friends, and which have proven themselves popular with children through the decades. Both words and music are printed. Such a book could spark a revival of the old custom of hymn singing in your home. "Rock of Ages," "We Gather Together," "Abide With Me" and "I Love to Tell the Story" are just some of the wonderful old songs in this timeless collection.

"Uncle Shelby's Story of Lafcadio, the Lion Who Shot Back" (Harper & Row, $2.95) is humorist Shel Silverstein's ribtickling story of the lion who became an expert marksman and turned the tables on the hunters — ". . . soon all the lions had nice hunter rugs." The publishers recommend it for 6- to 10-year-olds. We think that the 9-, 10- or even 11-year-olds will best appreciate its subtle satire. We know one adult who thought it delightful—us.

"A Year Is a Window" with verse by Richard Jackson and paintings by Erik Blegvad (Doubleday, $1.95) runs through the calendar month by month with beautiful watercolors by Blegvad and simple rhymes by Jackson pointing out the special delights of each. The price seems a bit high for such a small booklet. And yet, those Blegvad paintings are charming and far superior to most illustrations in the children's book field.

Halloween isn't too far off, so why not a ghost story — a funny ghost story? "Georgie and the Robbers" (Doubleday, $2.50) by Robert Bright is for children about 5 or 6, and tells how a friendly little spook foils some thieves. Bright's drawings have a humorous flair that is in perfect harmony with the lighthearted story.

If you're a "Winnie the Pooh" fan, you can add still another book to your collection of the A. A. Milne classics. "Pooh's Birthday Book" (E. P. Dutton, $2.95) is a collection of quotations from earlier Pooh books, one for each day of the year, and complete with the E. H. Shepard drawings. Milne fans, both young and old, and we sometimes think the adults outnumber the children, will be delighted by this little book.

As a companion volume to its "Grimm's Fairy Tales" Duell, Sloan and Pearce has now published in its Splendor Books series "Andersen's Fairy Tales" with illustrations by Janusz Grabianski. These are beautiful books certain to be treasured by their young recipients. And the price ($3.95) is amazingly reasonable considering the size and quality of the book. "The Ugly Duckling," "Thumbelina," "The Little Match Girl" and all the other Hans Christian Andersen favorites are here. And Grabianski's illustrations are individualistic and appealing.

If there is Scot blood in your veins, then you might get a special pleasure out of placing "Favorite Fairy Tales Told in Scotland," as retold by Virginia Haviland (Little, Brown, $2.95), in the hands of your youngsters. It is part of a series, and Miss Haviland is a genuine authority in the field of children's literature, and she has selected her stories well. Her narration is simple, yet colorful. And Adrienne Adams has provided excellent illustrations, both in black and white and color. Considering what children's books generally sell for, the price tag on this meatier-than-usual volume seems to be something of a bargain. For boys and girls about 8 or 9.

ANOTHER of Doubleday & Company's quest books that further adds to juvenile reading in the field of science and its impact on history is The Quest of Johannes Kepler, Astronomer. Barbara Land, who writes of this courageous man who brought big changes to the thinking of the 17th Century, explains the step by step evolution of Kepler's theories carefully and with excitement. Illustrations by Sam Wisnom further increase the clarity of a subject that can easily grow complex, even for adult readers.

COVER

READING and good posture do not often come at once with the young. Most boys will tell you that reading is a matter of attitude. In this pen and ink cover, Independent-Journal staffer Richard Lyttle has tried to illustrate some of these attitudes and postures.

JUST LEARNING to read, these pupils sound out their vowels as they begin the great adventure into children's literature. There is plenty for them to read.

Young Reviewer Found Tale Of Dane Exciting, Dramatic

THE LOCKED CROWNS, by Marion Garthwaite. Doubleday and Co.; 223 pages, $3.25. Reviewed by Bebe Jill Anderson (age 11).

This book is a modern retelling of the legend of Havelok the Dane, and the events in the book are supposed to take place in the sixth century. The book's illustrations, by Herman B. Vestal, are fine and detailed black-and-whites, while on the jacket is a beautiful color picture.

Princess Goldborough, the rightful ruler of England, is being cheated out of the throne by her treacherous guardian, Earl Godrich of Cornwall. She is locked up in a high-walled tower of rocks, and she and her two faithful servants are forced to live there.

Inextricably entwined with Goldborough's destiny is that of Havelok the Dane. Havelok, a king's son and rightful ruler of Denmark, is doomed to death by his jealous guardian, Jarl Godard. So Havelok lives with a loyal Danish family of fishermen who are going with him to England.

To tell the rest of the story of Havelok and Goldborough would ruin the plot, so I feel the only other thing I can say is that I enjoyed reading the book and that it is exciting and dramatic.

THE STEREO SCENE

Reiner And Brooks Cut Up For Laughs

By JOHN SUNIER
Editor, FM & Cultural Guide

CARL REINER & MEL BROOKS AT THE "CANNES FILM FESTIVAL" — Capitol Stereo SW 1815:

These two ad lib jokers are not really at the Cannes Festival at all, but simply breaking up a nightclub audience somewhere in the United States with some of the funniest interview-type gags in show business today.

"The 2,000-Year-Old Man" started the whole thing off on their first LP (SW 1529), which—as with most multi-volume efforts—was the best one. Then we had "The 2,000 and One Years" on SW 1618, and this third LP milks the gag a little further.

These bits can't be described; you must just sit down and take it cold, as Reiner the semi-straight-man and Brooks the character-actor record these interviews cold, without scripts.

Pretty wild cover art, too.

FLAMENCO FENOMENO, Juan Serrano—Elektra Stereo EKS-7235, and FLAMENCO FIRE!, Sarita Heredia—World-Pacific Stereo 1427:

A masculine and a feminine view of the world of flamenco—full of fire, passion and tears.

The second fine album for Juan Serrano on Elektra demonstrates that this first success wasn't just good luck. He has an amazing technique and seemingly large repertory.

This LP includes some lighter material such as "Flamenco Variations on Autumn Leaves," but the straight gypsy music is the worthwhile material in the album.

Miss Heredia, who recorded her LP during a live performance at L.A.'s Club Matador, is billed as the "World's Only Women Flamenco Guitarist." Although she lives in L.A., she owns a genuine cave in Granada's famous Sacramonte.

Her music is thoroughly authentic and suitably fiery, not at all feminine-sounding. The recording is excellent although fairly hissy.

True flamenco afficionados will want to add both of these unusual albums to their collections.

PROKOFIEV: Visions Fugitives (transcribed by Rudolf Barshai); TIPPETT: Concerto for Double String Orchestra; Bath Festival Chamber Orchestra and Moscow Chamber Orchestra/Rudolph Barshai; Angel Stereo S 35981:

A unique and important release which came about through the appearance of both the Moscow musicians and the Bath orchestra at the 1962 Bath Festival in Great Britain.

The concerto is by a 58-year-old English composer whose interest in music of the Elizabethan period shows up in the work.

The Moscow orchestra is centered at the left speaker and the English group at the right speaker for striking antiphonal effects in Tippett's music. The Russians are reported to have enjoyed the piece as much as their hosts, and promised to perform it throughout the Soviet Union on their return there.

A strictly Russian offering is heard on the flip side of this disc. Barshai has orchestrated 15 of the weird "visions" of Prokofiev in a varied program.

MARIN POETS' CORNER

JUST NAME IT

Kentfield is so wonderful,
Kentfield is so grand—
The pride of Marin County,
The finest in the land.

The rolling hills and stately trees
Spreading far and wide
Inspires one to write poetry
As this land stands out with pride.

The people are so wonderful,
So very, very kind;
Folks like these, believe me,
Are very hard to find.

It has everything to offer;
Just name it and it is there.
Come and visit Kentfield,
The fairest of the fair.

There are the Drews, the Furlongs, the Fosters,
The Trainors, Wilhelms and Arnetts.
These are but a few of the people
That are only the best.

Now as I close these stanzas,
My heart is filled with joy
To know I live in Kentfield
With the best-trained girls and boys.

DOMINICAN PRIORY — BROTHER BRANDAN

NOON

Hot brown stillness
Crushes stubble hills;
Voracious black buzzards
Swoop on carrion.
Joyful, spurting, twittering water sprinklers
Sparkle cool meadows of new grass.

Landscaping Can Be Financed By 'Easy' Time Payments Also

People who landscape a new lot are often unaware how easily it can be done—financially, that is. They stretch the job out over any number of months or years when they could simply have taken out a bank loan and done the job all at once.

Similarly, the gardener who sets out to remodel his garden often takes so long in doing it that the first areas which he remodeled are ready for renewing again by the time he finishes the rest of the job.

Nurserymen remind us that any number of lending institutions will make home improvement loans for landscaping purposes. We buy cars, kitchen equipment and furniture this way, so why not garden plants?

IF YOU ARE to receive a "garden improvement" loan, however, you must start with a plan. Just as no homebuilder could hope for a loan without house plans, neither should the gardener expect a loan without landscape plans.

This becomes especially important where any structural work is to be done—a patio, a deck or a lanai—but most lenders want a plan of the garden itself, including a landscaper's estimate as to the cost of planting it.

The simplest and best way to accomplish this initial step is to consult with a landscape designer. Many nurserymen are qualified to practice in this field and all of them are in a position to help you with plant selection. You can simplify and lessen the cost of professional help, however, by doing the initial work yourself.

ON A PIECE of graph paper, drawn to scale, lay out of the present plot of your lot, showing the position of the house, driveway and garage. If you have an established garden, show the location of all plant beds and borders, all trees and any existing patio areas. Armed with this, you can then visit a professional landscaper. Your efforts are time and money saved.

And if you are at all knowledgeable in the ways of plants, or if you have a good sense of design, why not make your plan from start to finish. You'll find various books on the subject of landscaping to help with the basic design problems, and your local nurseryman can give you advice on the planting.

The work area. So often this is overlooked by amateur landscapers. Garden enjoyment will be vastly increased if you have space to hide the family wash while it is drying; or a place to keep garbage cans out of sight.

An outdoor living area with easy access to the house. Barbecue and patio areas should not be tucked away in the back corner of a lot, where they become more of a retreat than part of your everyday life.

A play area for children. Nothing elaborate is needed here, but mothers who have toddlers will appreciate any plan which gives them a safe place to amuse themselves.

FOR WINTER yields of fresh vegetables, you must act now to prepare beds for winter planting. It does not take much space to keep the family well fed.

Now Is Time For Planting Winter Vegetable Garden

Now is the time for Marin gardeners to start planning and planting a winter vegetable garden.

A home garden not only helps the food budget but also adds rich, vitamin-laden food to winter menus.

Even a tiny space will yield many meals of vegetables.

A SIMPLE plan for an area only 4 feet wide and 10 feet long would provide for 4 rows, each the length of the area.

One of these might be planted half to carrots and half to beets, with radish seeds sown between beet and carrot seeds; radishes to be pulled and eaten before the other crops grow large.

A second row might be devoted to broccoli or cabbage if your family likes these vegetables.

A third row could be used for lettuce, planting only 3 feet of row at a time so as to have fresh, young lettuce for a long period.

SWISS CHARD, the green that yields most over a long harvest period, would be a good choice for that fourth row. But, if your family prefers spinach, then plant spinach very early and, when it has been eaten, plant turnips for a later crop.

Plant early so as to get the most yield from the area used. Don't grow any vegetables that your family doesn't like.

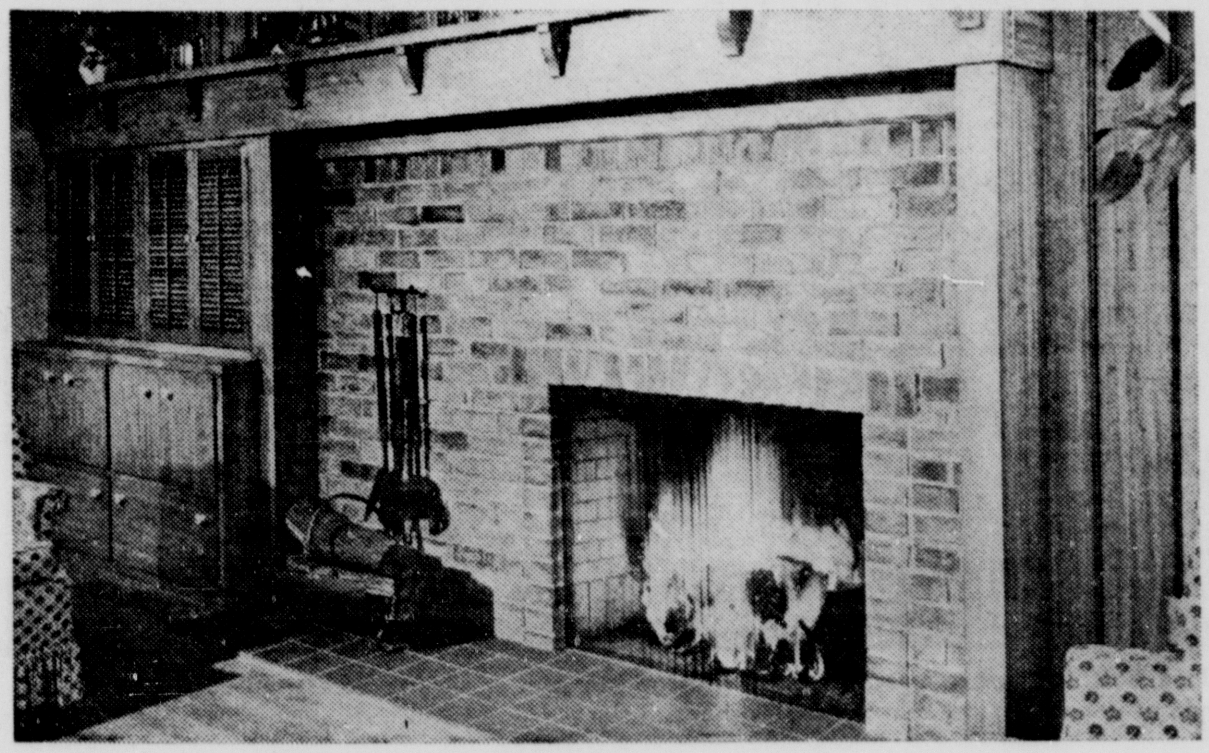
THIS DRAMATIC before and after shows how removal of heavy mantle, closing a window and tasteful use of wood paneling converted this austere fireplace into a warm center for family gatherings. The new mantle is higher and extends to form the top of the louvered cabinets built in front of the closed-up window. Expanse of brick facing off-sets the fireplace to improve the balance of the room.



CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardeners check list of things that should be done next week:

- Many vegetables are available in nursery flats for planting now. Cabbage, broccoli, brussels sprouts, celery and lettuce are included.
- Spray roses to knock out late summer pests and to keep the bushes healthy for the fall bloom.
- Some indica azaleas begin to bloom this month and next. You can extend the azalea season for several months by planting these early varieties.
- Prune out last year's canes on berry plants if you have not done so earlier. Tie the new canes up to carry next year's crop.
- Plant calla lilies this month. Also, replant any of the spring-blooming bulbs which you lifted and divided this summer. Check nurseries for newly arrived bulbs.

THE V SHAPED pool dominates the back yard of the Fred Politz home in Dominican Heights where casual and formal living are combined. Kitchen and family room are on right. Bedrooms are to the left. Swimmers will find casual decore in the back rooms, but front rooms are formal.

KITCHEN AND BREAKFAST area off the pool patio are provincial in decor with natural wood cabinets providing an ample amount of storage space.

FROM CASUAL . . .

Fred Politz Home Combines Pool-Side And Formal Life

Formal, deep-carpeted living has been successfully combined with casual, sometimes dripping pool-side fun in the Fred Politz home at 9 Aquinas Drive, San Rafael.

The Dominican Heights home is planned on a U with formal living room, hallway and dining room in front and with the casual family room and kitchen facing the pool and cement patio between the two wings.

THE LARGE family room and kitchen has direct access to the pool. Wet feet do not track across the carpeted formality of the front rooms. Formal landscaping is at the front and sides of the house and at the rear behind the pool.

Informal areas are clearly marked by vinyl flooring.

The kitchen combines step-saving efficiency in the work area with the old fashioned expanse of kitchen visiting area in the breakfast room.

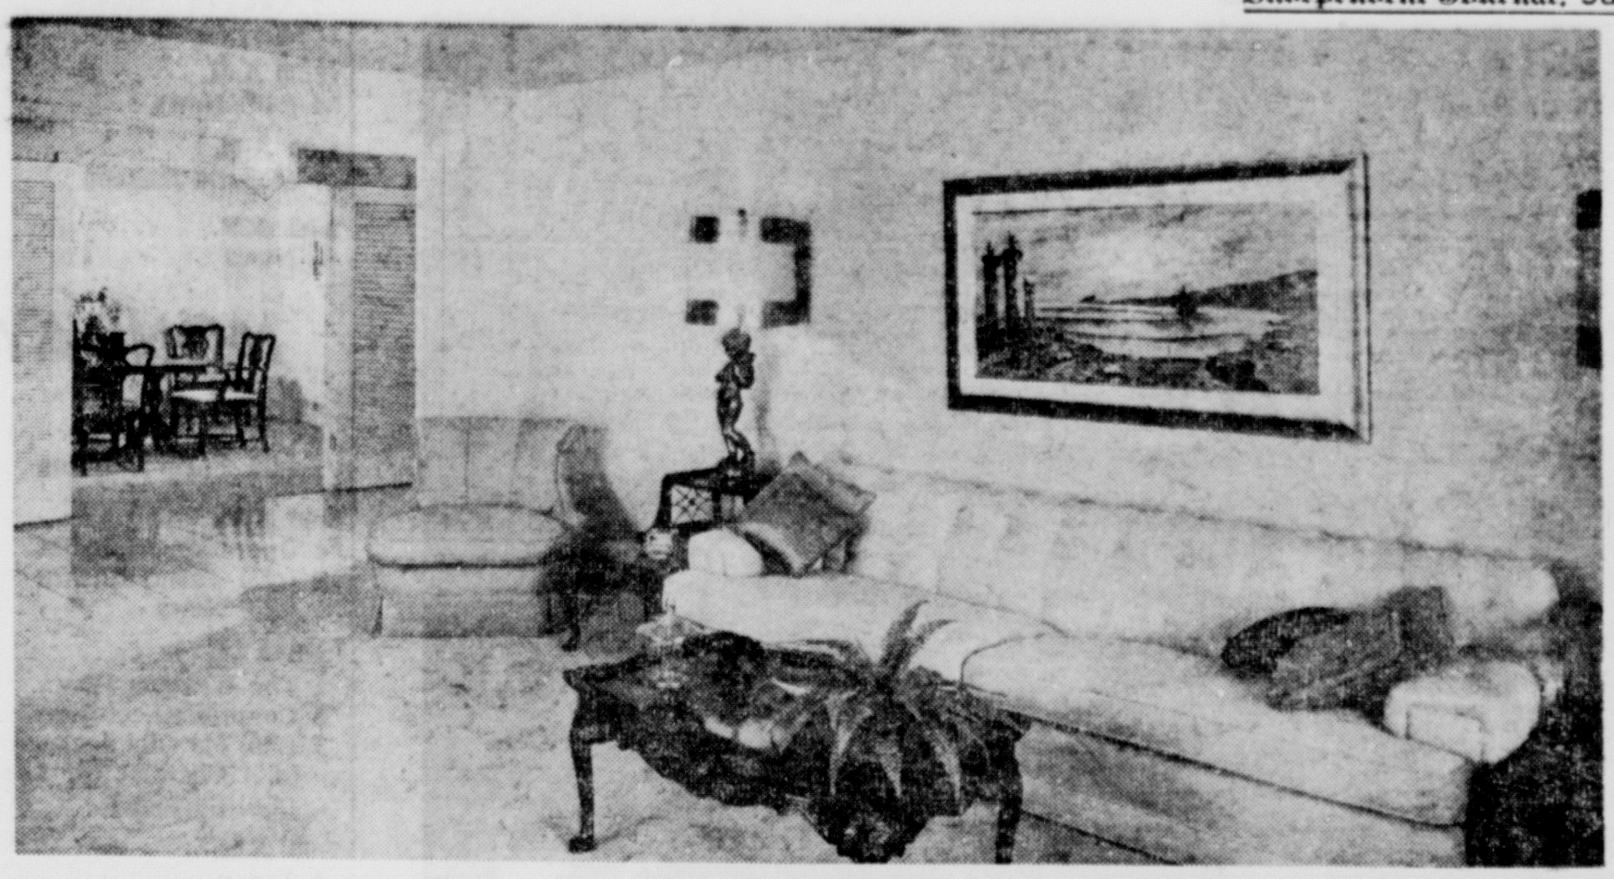
The home lends itself both to the easy entertaining of an afternoon swimming party and the elegance of a candlelite dinner.

The expansive and comfortable home was designed and built by Parnow Bros. Custom Builders of San Rafael.

LEISURE IS THEME of this family room which has a big fireplace, soft, leather covered furniture a large bar and a readily accessible collection of records. Western style of decor adds to relaxed atmosphere.



CALM SETTING for more formal living is this living room with Old World furnishings. Dining room is across the entrance hall at the left. A noisy swimming party seems far away, but the Politz family has only to step from here to the back yard to be at pool side. Combining formal and informal settings was one of the challenges that the family presented to Parnow Bros. Custom Builders of San Rafael who designed the house. Contrast this picture with the picture of the family room at the bottom of the opposite page.

TO FORMAL
